THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXIV. ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 26, 1892. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

WILL FIGHT CRISP.

Watson to Make Speeches in Crisp's District

IN FAVOR OF A THIRD PARTY MAN,

But While He Is Doing This Mr. Moses Will Visit the Tenth,

AND MAKE THINGS LIVELY FOR TOM.

The Anti-Option Bill Will Be Laid on the Shelf for the Present—The Raum Investigation.

Washington, July 25.—(Special.)—The speculators of the country will be very happy within a day or two. For many weeks they have been watching the option bill with great interest and they are yet in a state of mind as to whether or not the bill will pass. It can be stated now with almost absolute certainty that the bill will not become a law at this session of congress. There are a number of speeches yet to be made on it in the senate and the best opinion is that a vote will not be reached. Even, however, should a vote be taken and the bill pass the senate with amendments there would not be time to get it through the house. Thus it can be put down that the option bill is dead so far as this session is concerned.

The Raum Investigation.

The report of the Raum investigating committee was up in the house for a time today, but there was but little interest manifested in it. The republicans have given notice that they will filibuster if an attempt is made to pass it. That notice precludes all possibility of putting it through and while there may be some more debate it will cut no further figure in the proceedings of this house.

Watson Will Try to Defeat Crisp.

Tom Watson has given notice that he will go right into Speaker Crisp's district shortly after the adjournment of congress and will do all in his power towards the election of a third party man, but Colonel Moses is going into the tenth and will make things very warm for the gallant Tom. He will perhaps challenge Watson to a joint debate. Moses is a power on the stump and if Watson accepts his challenge there will be lively times in the old district.

The Heat Will Adjourn Congress.

If Washington weather continues anything like it has been today and yesterday nothing on earth can keep congress in session many more days. The capital was simply sweltering this afternoon. In the hall of the house the mercury rose to 98 degrees and in parts of the building it reached the 100.

The house was in no humor to do anything and everybody discussed when adjournment would be had. The world's fair appropriation in the sundry civil bill is the only thing to be acted upon that would consume more than an hour or two of time.

The report on this from the conference committee will be made in the morning and the house will immediately proceed to its consideration. It is possible that a vote may be taken tomorrow as the members are in no humor to listen to any more debate. Of course, there will be a test vote in advance of the vote making the appropriation. Both sides claim that they have the majority but the world's fair members have been working, while the opposition has done nothing. Thus the chances are that the appropriation will have a slight majority of the house, for it. In that event the opposition has already given notice that it will resort to filibustering. Then the question will be whether the senate will hold out or recede from its amendment in order to adjourn. Again it is possible that the opposition might content itself with a couple of days filibustering to show its decided opposition and then stop and let the appropriation go through. No one can predict, with any degree of certainty, what the outcome will be, but every one knows that if the present weather prevails congress will not be in session many days longer. Indeed, warm weather or not, the session will not last longer than Wednesday of next week. Already both members and senators have commenced leaving in blocks. It is not probable that either house will have a quorum after Wednesday.

Appropriations for Georgia Rivers.

The river and harbor bill has been signed by the president and is a law.

Through the efforts of Colonel Lester, who is a member of the committee, Georgia has fared remarkably well.

Here are the paragraphs of the act providing for Georgia's harbors and rivers:

Improving Harbor at Brunswick—Completing improvement, $27,500.

Improving Cumberland Sound—Continuing improvement, $170,000.

Improving Harbor at Savannah—Continuing improvement, $318,750: Provided, That contracts may be entered into by the secretary of war for such materials and work as may be necessary to complete the present project of improvement, to be paid for as appropriations may from time to time be made by law, not to exceed the aggregate $2,881,250, exclusive of the amount herein and heretofore appropriated.

Improving Harbor at Darien—Continuing improvement, $25,000.

Improving Altamaha River—Continuing improvement, $15,000.

Improving Chattahoochee River, Georgia and Alabama—Continuing improvement, $25,000, of which $5,000 is to be used on that portion of the river between West Point and Franklin.

Improving Flint River—Continuing improvement, $15,000, of which $4,000 is to be expended between Albany and Montezuma, and $11,000 below Albany.

Improving Ocmulgee River—Continuing improvement, $25,000, of which $12,500 is to be expended between Macon and Hawkinsville, and the like sum below Hawkinsville.

Improving Oconee River—Continuing improvement, $25,000, of which $5,000 is to be expended between Milledgeville and the Central railroad bridge.

Improving Savannah River, Between Augusta and Savannah—Continuing improvement, $35,000.

Improving Jekyl Creek—Continuing improvement, $7,500.

Improving Coosa River, in Georgia and Alabama, Between Rome, Ga., and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Bridge, in Alabama—Continuing improvement, $130,000.

The World's Fair Appropriation.

The world's fair people here have done some good work in the house within the last few days and the indications are that when the $5,000,000 appropriation is voted on again they will have a majority of the house.

This majority which they claim has been brought about in two ways. Many of the opponents of the appropriation have left the city, while its advocates remain.

Cleveland and Stevenson are said to be favorable to the appropriation and to have expressed a hope that it would be adopted. Naturally this has had its effect. Indeed it is asserted by the world's fair people that Tracey and Warner, of New York, who voted against it before have now changed in deference to the wishes of Mr. Cleveland.

Just what the result will be is yet unknown, but if the majority for the appropriation on the vote to be taken Wednesday is as large as the majority against it last week it is probable that it will go through eventually. Of course there will be several days filibustering against it, but whether the filibusterers will hold out against the pressure the world's fair people can bring upon them is a debatable question. The world's fair people think not.

E. W. B.

HE SCORED RAUM.

Remarks of Representative Little on the Pension Office Investigation.

Washington, July 25.—In the house Mr. Wheeler, of Michigan, called up as special order the report of the committee investigating the workings of the pension office. Mr. Enloe suggested that the debate be limited to two hours on each side.

Mr. Henderson made a counter suggestion that the debate be permitted to proceed without limitation for the present. No limitation was agreed on and Mr. Little, of New York, took the floor in advocacy of the majority resolutions, which give it as the judgment of the house that the president should remove Raum.

Mr. Little said that an examination of the testimony taken, together with the report, would show that the committee had been fair and even considerate of the feelings and reputation of all so far as it was in its power to be. The committee regretted that the evidence presented to it was of such a character that it could present no different report from what it had. The public press had been a great source of trouble to the committee. Faithful employes of long standing had been discharged for reading newspapers—republican newspapers at that—which criticised the management of the pension office. Now the minority decline to join the majority because the reporters of the daily press had, as usual, succeeded in obtaining news in advance of its authorized publication. He believed that the present administration of the pension bureau was unfortunately one of the few dark pages that had occurred in connection with departmental management. He believed it to be a political and moral crime to permit such management to continue. He contended that the statement made by the commissioner of pensions was a clear admission that the office had been used for partisan purposes. It should be managed upon the strictest business principles, and if the chief of the bureau prostituted his office he was unworthy to be longer trusted with its management.

Mr. Lind, of Minnesota, in opposing the resolution, turned his attention chiefly to Representative Cooper, of Indiana, and the part Mr. Cooper bore in the investigation.

Mr. Enloe, one of the authors of the investigation resolution, spoke in favor of the report.

Other Matters Discussed.

The debate was interrupted at this time by Mr. Sayers, who submitted the disagreeing report on the general deficiency appropriation bill, and the report was agreed to.

Mr. Holman then moved that the house recede from its amendment granting to widows, or legal representatives of deceased members, the balance of the salary which such members would have received.

Mr. Hayes, of Iowa, moved to lay the motion on the table. Lost—yeas, 89; nays, 101.

Then Mr. Hayes moved a reconsideration and pending that, moved an adjournment, pending which Mr. Enloe moved a recess until tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock, his object being to keep legislation in existence. No quorum voting—yeas, 2; nays, 128. Mr. Sayers moved a call of the house and it was agreed to. The call of the house was dispensed with and then the house adjourned.

The report of the Raum investigating committee will have no special standing before the house until the committee on rules report another resolution setting aside a day for its consideration.

Mr. Holman's motion is regarded by the friends of the world's fair amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill as the beginning of an attack all along the line against the $5,000,000 appropriation. They are indignant and declare that if the appropriation is filibustered against they will resort to the same methods of legislation and use every parliamentary means known to the rules of the house to prevent action on any joint resolution, further extending the appropriation for the support of the government. Then if the deficiency and sundry civil bills fail, they say Holman and his followers will be responsible.

ASSESSING THE CANDIDATES

Who Will Run in the Primary at Charleston Next Month.

Charleston, S. C., July 25.—(Special.)—The county democratic executive committee met today and transacted a good deal of business. The following assessments were levied upon candidates: Congressman, $500; sheriff, $500; coroner and clerk of court, $250 each; senator, $200; representatives, $100; auditor, treasurer and school commissioners, $50 each; trial justices, $25. Based on the number of candidates already in the field, this should realize upwards of fifteen thousand dollars as a campaign fund to conduct the primary. The committee also adopted a resolution requiring each candidate to pay his assessment on or before August 19th, in failure of which his name shall be omitted from the tickets printed by the committee and no votes cast for the delinquent shall be counted by the managers.

The defeated candidates are to have 50 per cent of the assessment returned to them after the primary. Only members of the democratic club will be allowed to vote at the primaries.

Nelson Will Be Nominated.

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—Complete returns from all counties, with two exceptions, show that Knute Nelson, for two terms a member of congress from the fifth district, is certain of the republican nomination for governor.

Nelson has 480 out of 790 delegates, and his friends will control the nominations from governor to supreme court judges. Nelson is a low tariff republican, who, it will be remembered, voted for the Mills bill. The giving of the nomination to Nelson is said to be the first move of the republicans to win back the Scandinavians, many thousands of whom joined the people's party two years ago.

A Proposition for Fusion.

Raleigh, N. C., July 25.—(Special.)—The political sensation is the appearance in the third party organ this afternoon of a long address to the people, signed by Dr. John J. Mott, for years chairman of the state executive committee of the third party. It is a formal proposition for a fusion of the republican party and the third party on the state ticket, and the congressmen put up by the latter party.

BY WIND AND FLAME

Much Valuable Property Has Been Destroyed.

A MILLION DOLLAR LOSS AT BAY CITY

Over Eight Blocks of Buildings Burned,

AND SEVERAL LIVES REPORTED LOST.

A Storm in West Virginia Sweeps Everything Before It—A Family of Nine Persons Perish by the Blast.

Bay City, Mich., July 25.—The greatest conflagration which ever visited Bay City broke out at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the lumber manufacturing establishment of Miller & Turner, situated on the west side of Water street, at the foot of Twenty-ninth street. A brisk southwest wind was blowing at the time, which fanned the flames into a roaring conflagration and swept them across Water street into the settled district. On this side of Water street where the fire crossed was built up with stores, hotels and restaurants. Nearly all of the buildings were constructed of wood and burned like tinder.

Block After Block Destroyed.

The wind increased as the flames progressed and in an hour the flames had consumed Miller & Turner's plant, comprising a sawmill, salt blocks, dry kilns and a large quantity of lumber.

The flames had also traveled three blocks to the eastward and cut a swath two blocks wide. At this point the path of the conflagration broadened and block after block was swept over with astonishing rapidity.

The scenes which ensued beggars description. Thousands of men, women and children rushed about, all engaged in removing furniture and household effects from before the advancing flames. Every vehicle in the city was used on the grounds and, as is always the case at such times, the owners charged fabulous prices for their services.

Telegraphing for Assistance.

At 5 o'clock about thirty blocks had been burned over, while twenty more were supplying fresh fuel to the devouring element. When the chief of the fire department first realized the extent of danger he telegraphed to Saginaw, Flint and Detroit for assistance. Saginaw and Flint responded, each city sending an engine and quantities of hose. But with hundreds of streams playing on the fire the flames pursued their course, licking up house after house, until at 8 o'clock upwards of three hundred dwellings had been destroyed and the conflagration was still sweeping toward the eastern limit of the city.

While a majority of the buildings burning belonged to the working people, many fine residences have been consumed. Two churches, four hotels and about forty stores, of all varieties, are included among the structures which have contributed fuel to the flames.

Several Lives Lost.

At this hour (9 o'clock p. m.) many rumors are afloat concerning persons who have perished. So far as is positively known only one death has occurred, that of a woman whose name it is impossible to learn tonight. She lay sick in one of the houses which was destroyed. Before assistance could reach her, the dwelling was a seething mass of fire and she had to be left to her fate. It is thought that two children were burned to death, but the story lacks confirmation.

Miller & Turner, on whose premises the fire started lost about $150,000, mostly covered by insurance.

The entire loss will reach upwards of $1,000,000, but is impossible to learn tonight the extent to which the different parties are insured.

Electric Works on Fire.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 25.—Fire broke out inthe building known as tube works No. 11 of the Edison general electric works in this city this morning about 8 o'clock. The entire building with its contents and much valuable machinery and a large quantity of stock, were entirely consumed. The fire was supposed to be from spontaneous combustion. Loss about one hundred thousand dollars.

SWEPT AWAY BY THE FLOOD.

A Family of Nine Drowned by the Rushing Waters.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 25.—The severe storm which passed over this portion of the country last night was more disastrous in its results than was at first described. It is know that there was considerable loss of life, beside some destruction of property by lightning on Long Run, in Marshall county, a few miles south of Wheeling. An entire family of nine persons is reported to have been swept away from the face of the earth by the sudden flood following the cloudburst. The family consisted of William Doty and wife, three children, Doty's father and mother, Mrs. Doty's mother and a servant girl. The house was situated in a ravine, not one of the sleeping occupants being saved.

The first news of the disaster was the finding of the body of the servant girl this morning in the yard of a neighbor, some distance from where the house stood.

A COMPROMISE EXPECTED.

Opponents of the Anti-Option Bill Have the Innings.

Washington, July 25.—There is some prospect this afternoon that the almost interminable debate upon the anti-option bill may be brought to a speedy and unexpected end. The large majority in favor of the consideration of the bill disclosed whenever a formal motion has been made to take it up, greatly discouraged the opponents of the measure and they were obliged to fall back upon the last resort of the threatened minority in the senate—talk against time—hoping to protract the debate and prevent action upon the bill until final adjournment.

But certain elements have been at work in a direction favorable to the opposition. Mr. White's speech, unlike the majority of set speeches, undoubtedly made some converts to his side of the controversy and the numerous remonstrances that have been pouring in from leading commercial and financial bodies in the United States have also had their effect. Further aid to the opposition has come from the extremely warm weather, which has made the temperature in the senate chamber almost unbearable, and has weakened the purpose of the senators who were resolved to have a vote on the anti-option bill before they left Washington for the summer.

Today it was suddenly announced by some of the opponents of the bill that the senators above referred to would secure the opportunity they wished for and right speedily, too. This announcement was soon followed by a proposition to the senate from Mr. Wolcott to refer the bill to the finance committee. Among considerations urged in favor of reference are the following: The original bill was certainly a revenue bill and its revenue features had never been passed upon by the finance committee. Amendments have also been added to the original bill in such numbers and of such a scope that few senators are prepared to assert that they understand exactly what the bill in its present shape means. This fact, it is urged, gives reason for the reference of the bill to the finance committee in order that an authoritative declaration may be had as to its probable effect upon the finances of the country.

Using these and other arguments, opponents of the anti-option bill have been making inroads upon the strength of the measure and this afternoon it was asserted that if a vote is taken upon Wolcott's motion it will prevail. If it should not, opponents of the bill will have lost no ground; they will be just where they are now—in a position to talk against time to defer action on the bill until next session.

Mr. Wolcott fully expects that Mr. Allison will tomorrow renew the motion he made, but withdrew today, to lay the motion to refer the bill on the table, and that will bring the matter to a head immediately and test the strength of the opposition.

WHAT THE SENATE DID.

Report on the Sundry Civil Bill—The Anti-Option Bill, Etc.

Washington, July 25.—In the senate Mr. Vest introduced a joint resolution authorizing the president to proffer to Great Britain, Germany and France as an inducement to enter into an international agreement for the free coinage of silver, a reduction of 25 per cent in tariff duties on textiles, hardware, earthenware and glass. Laid on the table.

The anti-options bill was then taken up. Mr. George addressed the senate. He spoke of the New Orleans and New York cotton exchanges as being composed of some six hundred men, not one of whom raised cotton, consumed it or even handled it. On one day in the New York cotton exchange 15,000 bales of the mythical "phantom" or "wind" cotton had been sold for one bale of real cotton, and he asked whether that was real, genuine commerce or whether it was gaming.

At five minutes past 2 o'clock Mr. George yielded the floor temporarily at the request of Mr. Allison, who presented the conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill.

The report, although referring to amendments of the bill by numbers only, covered many pages of type-written paper, and its reading occupied twenty-five minutes. Mr. Allison made an explanation of the conference report, stating that, outside of the provisions about the world's fair, there was but one other matter left open, the provision inserted by the house, prohibiting the employment of Pinkerton detectives. He went somewhat into detail upon other points, on which the senate conferees had surrendered. The report was agreed to, and a further conference was asked as to the points on which there had been no agreement.

The senate voted to insist on its amendments agreed to by the house, and asked for a further conference, and then, at 3 o'clock p. m., the senate went into executive session.

After the doors were reopened and some unimportant business had been transacted, Mr. George resumed the floor, and held it until 5:20 o'clock, his speech being an argument in favor of his own substitute for the anti-option bill.

Mr. Wolcott entered a motion to have the bill referred to the finance committee with instructions to report it at the next session.

Mr. Hunton made his maiden speech in the senate on the anti-option bill. He rather favored the substitute offered by Mr. George, but expressed himself as willing to solve in favor of the producer the doubt as to the constitutionality of the pending bill, and to vote for it.

Mr. Allison moved to lay on the table Mr. Wolcott's motion to refer, but, after some colloquy, he withdrew the motion.

After a short executive session, the senate, at 5:55 o'clock, adjourned.

FIRE ON A CRUISER.

The Charleston Damaged—The Hatches Battered Down.

Port Orchard, Wash., July 25.—A fire broke out in the coal bunkers of the United States cruiser Charleston on Friday, but the facts were not made public until today. The fire bell immediately rang, and within thirty seconds the pumps started, and after battling with the flames for thirty-five minutes the fire was subdued. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. All the hatches were battered down to smother the flames. The deck in storage had to be torn up to reach the flames, when streams of water were turned on which extinguished the blaze.

The berth deck in the steerage was partly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and a part of the fittings. The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to Mare island.

SHOT BY THE 'SQUIRE.

One Negro Shoots Another One in Chattanooga.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 25.—(Special.)—The prevailing sensation in Chattanooga is the attempt 'Squire Burge made to assassinate Charley Bird here this afternoon. Both are colored politicians, prominent in republican circles. Burge is a justice of the peace and a director in the Penny Savings bank. It appears that Bird had circulated a report charging Burge with an unnatural crime, the alleged offense having been committed in Cartersville, Ga., some years ago. The shooting took place in front of the Read house. Burge advanced on his victim and without a word of warning emptied two loads of duckshot into him from a double-barreled gun. Bird's condition is critical. Burge gave himself up. He is the most prominent negro in the city.

They Defy the Authorities.

Adair, Ind. Ter., July 25.—The members of the Dalton gang, who recently held up and robbed the Missouri, Kansas and Texas express train are camped twenty-five miles from here and are making no effort to escape from the country. Members of the gang are in town every day or two and do not try to conceal their identity. The officers here make no attempt to arrest them, and the robbers have become so bold as to defy the authorities. It is believed they are preparing another raid.

IT'S A SCORCHER.

That Warm Wave Now Passing Over the Country.

MERCURY CLIMBING TO THE TOP,

Registering in Some Places Over a Hundred in the Shade.

SEVERAL FATAL SUNSTROKES REPORTED,

And Prostrations by the Score—A Minister Falls While Conducting Services in Louisville, Ky.

Washington, July 25.—This has been the hottest day of the season in Washington. The hot wave reached here yesterday and all during the day the mercury hung around the nineties and about 2 o'clock p. m. reached the maximum of 94. By 8 o'clock last night it registered 90 degrees, and at midnight had fallen to 86 degrees. Today the maximum reached was 97 at the signal station, but on the streets the heat was terrific, several thermometers in different part of the city registering as high as 103 in the shade. Five cases of prostrations from heat have been sent to the hospitals.

New York, July 25.—Today set out to be the warmest of the year, with a temperature of 78 degrees at 8 o'clock, the highest at that hour recorded by the weather bureau during the present summer. As the morning wore on the day's promise of heat was well maintained. At 10 o'clock the mercury had risen to 82 degrees and at 10:45 o'clock to 87 1-2 degrees. Humidity lent its aid to make the day as memorable as possible and was 79 per cent at 8 o'clock and 82 per cent at 10 o'clock. The wind drifted languidly along at the rate of from four to five miles an hour. At 1 o'clock the thermometer had reached 94 degrees, the highest point reached this year by 2 degrees. The approach of clouds soon after 1 o'clock caused a drop in the thermometer of 11 degrees in five minutes. The whole country was sweltering in sympathy with the metropolis.

At Burlington, N. J., factories were compelled to shut down at 10:30 o'clock this morning when the mercury marked 105 in the shade. Many prostrations from heat were reported.

The weather continues very hot in Chicago, but its rigors are tempered by a fresh breeze. Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon four deaths from sunstroke were reported and a number of prostrations by heat.

At Auburn, N. Y., yesterday was the hottest day of the season, the thermometer registering 95 in the shade and not a breath of air stirring. Today is almost as hot, but a little breeze. Thermometer 92.

At Elmira, N. Y., at 3 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer registered 96 in the shade.

The mercury reached 96 at Watertown, N. Y., this afternoon, the hottest thus far this year.

At Utica, N. Y., the temperature was 80 at midnight, 92 at 10 o'clock a. m., and 94 at 2 o'clock p. m.

Yesterday and today were about equal as to the intensity of heat in Cincinnati. The mercury at the top of the custom house in charge of the United States weather bureau registered 94 at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Three deaths from heat have been reported already in Cincinnati, Covington and Newport, two of which were in Newport. Half a dozen or more cases of prostration have occurred. The radiated heat from the granite and asphalt pavements brings the temperature in many places above 100 degrees.

The signal service thermometer at St. Louis yesterday showed a temperature of 95 degrees. In various localities instruments recorded from 96 to 102. Three cases of prostration by heat have been reported, one of which has resulted fatally.

Fifteen cases of heat prostration have been reported at Detroit as a result of the hottest day of the year in that city. At 2 o'clock yesterday the thermometers registered 102 in the shade while the mercury in the weather bureau office at the top of a ten-story building rose to 96 degrees.

The thermometer at 4 o'clock in Philadelphia reached 93 and the humidity was 84. At 8 o'clock tonight the thermometer was at 82 and the humidity 67. No sunstrokes reported.

At Pittsburg the thermometer reached 95 on Sunday and was the hottest day in five years. Today it reached 98. A few mill and factory hands at work suffered terribly today and many were compelled to go home. A large number of prostrations from heat were reported, but so far there have been no fatalities. Indications are for the continuance of the torrid weather for several days at least.

Six deaths from sunstroke today in Chicago and the total since Saturday night is fourteen. The thermometer at 7 o'clock a. m. today stood at 80, and it rose gradually until the middle of the afternoon when it reached 94.

At different places in northern Illinois and Iowa today 98 to 100 was a very common record. At Kansas City the thermometer was 100 to 102. There were two fatal sunstrokes. One was Patrick J. Meagher, a newspaper reporter.

The thermometer was 104 yesterday and 100 today at Dayton, O.

Suffering from a Lack of Rain.

Memphis, Tenn., July 25.—The continued heavy rains, lasting over two weeks, which terminated ten days ago, followed by drought and excessively hot weather, have seriously damaged the cotton crop in this section and unless we have rain within the next week a great deal of the product will be rendered about worthless.

PROUD OF HIS DEED.

Bergman Says He Wants All the Credit for Shooting Frick.

Pittsburg, July 25.—Bergman talks occasionally and shows considerable interest in learning how his act in shooting Frick is regarded by the people. When he heard that Frick was doing well and would probably recover, he said he was sorry. He told the warden of the jail that he was born in St. Petersburg and was educated at the gymnasium of one of the leading colleges of St. Petersburg. He was satisfied that he had many sympathizers. He knew that his life would pay the penalty if Frick died and that if Frick lives he (Bergman) will have a long term of imprisonment. He looked that up before he started on his enterprise and is willing to stand the consequences, no matter what they are. He said he had no confederates and wanted all the credit that belongs to him. He speaks four languages.

The jail officials express the opinion that Bergman is not crazy. He asked to see the newspapers today, but his wish has not yet been gratified.

AN ANARCHIST PLOT.

Bergman Was Sent Out by the Conspirators to Kill Frick.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 25.—Two men were arrested today, from whom a better knowledge of Bergman was obtained. One was Caspar Knold, a workman in Tyler & Dean's wire mill. Knold says that Bergman came to him on July 14th with a letter of introduction from John Most. Bergman had no friends and Knold sheltered him until last Thursday, when he left and on Friday Knold purchased for him a ticket to Chicago and separated from him at the station gate, where Bergman was to take the train. A search of Knold's house shows him to be a rank anarchist. A quantity of incendiary literature was found.

Knold admitted to the police that he had received several letters from Most, concerning Bergman and that Most told him that Bergman was a bad man. He said that Bergman represented to him that he was in search of employment and claimed that he knew nothing of the intended assassination.

The way in which the police obtained the clew to Knold was through a letter sent from a man in Long Branch to Bergman, in care of Knold. The letter contained $6. Superintendent O'Mara has been wired to have this man arrested. The man with the police will not divulge his name.

The police authorities are convinced tonight that the attempted assassination of H. C. Frick was an anarchist plot that may be as great in scope as that for which Spies and his companions were hanged. They have the names of a number of persons in New York, Long Branch, Hoboken and other places whom they think were implicated and telegrams have been sent to have them arrested. Until they are in custody the names will not be made public, as the police think the publication would defeat the ends of justice.

Inspector McKeeley says they will be able to show that Most was interested in the affair. A number of arrests will probably be made here tomorrow.

TO WORK FOR CARNEGIE.

One Train Brings Nearly Two Hundred Workmen to Homestead.

Pittsburg, July 25.—In regard to the general situation of affairs today everything seems quiet. Fast mail express No 7, westbound on the Pennsylvania road, made a stop this morning at the station not indicated on its schedules. This train does not carry passengers, but this morning there were two mysterious looking day coaches on the rear of the train. The blinds of the windows were drawn closely and the doors at both ends of the coaches were securely locked. As the train neared Swissville station, near the encampment of the provisional brigade, it came to a stop. The day coaches were shifted to a siding in the front of the station and the train passed on to the city.

After the train had gone the doors of the cars were opened and a number of men, nearly two hundred in all, alighted.

It was whispered among spectators at once that the men were non-union workmen bound for the Carnegie steel mills at Homestead. The surmise proved to be correct, as the entire body marched down the road toward the camp of the Fourteenth regiment. The steamer Little Bill was moored at a landing near City Farm station, apparently waiting to carry the men over the river. The men are from Philadelphia, New York and Boston and many are said to be skilled iron and steel workers.

A man was arrested today whom the officers assert to be Bergman's companion, but great reticence is observed concerning him.

O'Donnell was released on bail this afternoon.

WITHDRAWING THE TROOPS.

Peace Reigns at Wardner—Military Returning to the Forts.

Washington, July 25.—General Schofield received a telegram from General Carlin, at Wardner, this morning saying that the state of affairs in the mining districts is so satisfactory that most of the United States troops ordered there can be withdrawn with safety. General Schofield immediately telegraphed orders for the Twenty-second infantry from Fort Keogh and the Twentieth infantry from Fort Missoula to return to their respective posts and invested General Ruger with discretion to withdraw other United States troops from time to time as he may deem expedient. General Schofield said that a few United States troops will be kept at Wardner for some time to come in order to guard against a recurrence of the trouble.

MORE CHOLERA RIOTS.

People Rebel Against the Sanitary Measures and Kill the Physicians.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—Advices received here from Astrakhan are to the effect that the epidemic of cholera at that place is abating. From these advices it is learned that serious disturbances, due to the outbreak of the disease, have occurred at Prenaiach, Toubac, in the province of Astrakhan, where the inhabitants and a number of emigrants rebelled against the sanitary measures adopted by the authorities. The rioters attacked and pillaged the postoffice and communal offices, and also wrecked a pharmacy and killed the proprietor and his assistant. They then attacked the police, who were trying to restore order, killing one and injuring a number of others. A priest, who attempted to pacify the rioters, was severely beaten. In the villages of Tolenci and Zaimische, also in the province of Astrakhan, infuriated mobs seized and destroyed a quantity of disinfectants landed from a steamer and tried to seize the steamer, but were repulsed.

There were twenty-nine new cases of cholera reported in Nijani, Novgorod, Sunday. Merchandise for the great fair which opens on Wednesday arrives very slowly.

The Figures Appalling.

London, July 25.—A St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says: An official bulletin announces that 2,012 cases of cholera and 1,302 deaths from the disease occurred in Russia on the 21st, 22d and 23d instants. These figures include statistics for Viatua in European Russia, where 138 cases and sixty-four deaths were reported.

The Cholera in France.

Paris, July 25.—No cases of cholera were reported in the suburbs today. A violent outbreak of a disease supposed to be cholera has occurred in the lunatic asylum at Bonneval on the River Loire, seventy-five miles northwest of Paris.

WHAT BISMARCK SAID

In His Speech at Kissingen—"I Shall Not Be Silent."

Berlin, July 25.—Prince Bismarck, in his speech at Kissingen Saturday, after referring to the events of 1866 and 1870, said: "My hearers must excuse the political nature of my speech. After forty years of political life it is impossible for me to abandon politics. People may try to close my mouth as much as possible, but I shall not be silent. All of my opponents are of the opinion that I would occupy a higher place in history if I kept silent and said not another word, and my resistance to this suggestions has caused the harshest judgment against my person and character. The semi-official press, especially, forget that when they declare me a dangerous man their aspersions must infallibly react on the office I quitted. They cannot disparage me without the person they use against me re-acting upon the people and events that contributed to the foundation of the empire."

Put the Young Lady Off.

Bairdstown, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Conductor Jones, of the fast train, is making himself quite unpopular with the traveling public, especially with the ladies. On Monday evening last he put off Miss Annie Lee Wilson, a young lady about fifteen years old, about one mile above Bairdstown, because he forgot to stop his train here. She had to lug a heavy valise about a mile, she being too frightened to compel him to bring her back, as he ought to have done. The young lady's grandfather will sue the railroad for damages.

Ran Into a Washout.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 25.—An engine, tender and seven loaded box cars were wrecked yesterday near Drifton, on the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad, by a mixed train running into a bad washout. A colored fireman was killed and other train hands more or less injured. The train was bound east for Jacksonville. No passengers were hurt. Recent rains have flooded nearly 100 miles of the Florida Central and Peninsular track, between Tallahassee and Baldwin.

DOINGS OF DEMONS.

A Negro Assaults a White Lady in South Carolina,

IS ARRESTED AND PUT IN JAIL.

Friends Attempt to Rescue Him, but Fail.

A TENNESSEE MAN BRAINS HIS WIFE,

And Afterwards Kills His Stepdaughter. A Mob Puts Him Out of the Way. A Chattanooga Tragedy.

Columbia, S. C., July 25.—Saturday evening George Kinard, a negro forty years old, assaulted Mrs. Addison, a white woman, at Irmo, a small station on the Columbia, Newberry and Laurens railroad, in Lexington county, twelve miles from Columbia. The negro held a pistol to her head, and threatened to kill her if she resisted or cried out. The husband was only a hundred yards away from the spot where the outrage was being committed. Upon the departure of the negro, Mrs. Addison raised an alarm, and her husband endeavored to catch the negro, but he got away. A posse scoured the country, and yesterday Kinard was arrested and brought before Mrs. Addison, who identified him as her assailant. The negroes around Irmo are greatly excited over the affair, and are gathering at Irmo, there having been talk of lynching by the white men. This morning Lewis Brown, a negro, became very insolent, and got into a fight with S. K. Bouknight, who shot Brown through the stomach, and he will likely die.

This shooting still further incensed the negroes, and there was talk of rescuing Kinard. The white men of the neighborhood are collecting at Irmo under arms, and the negroes are also out in force. Trouble is feared tonight. Kinard had a preliminary hearing this morning, and was sent to Lexington jail under guard.

The Negroes Are Arming.

The last advices from Irmo show an alarming state of facts. The negroes are arming and sending runners into the country for help. The white citizens are preparing for defense, and trouble will certainly occur. The prisoner (Kinard) was lodged in Lexington county jail, but the sheriff is very apprehensive as to his safety.

The Lexington Guards were asked to turn out and protect the jail, but refused to do so, unless ordered out by the governor. The governor has been telegraphed to for orders. The whites at Irmo are being reinforced by citizens armed to the teeth, from the neighboring towns. The prisoner says he is innocent of the crime.

AN AX WAS HIS WEAPON.

J. H. Wynn Murders His Wife and Stepdaughter and a Mob [illegible]

Nashville, Tenn., July 25.—(Special.)—J. H. Wynn murdered his wife and stepdaughter last night, and then attempted suicide. Today he was lynched. The scene of the crime was at Byrns, Dickson county. The murdered woman was the widow of John Anderson, and married Wynn three years ago. She was left considerable property, and persistently declined to let Wynn manage it. This led to many quarrels, and ultimately to the murder. Mrs. Wynn and her fifteen-year-old daughter had retired, when Wynn crept into the room with an ax. He struck his wife first, the blow opening her face and severing her jawbone. The injured woman sat up in bed only to receive another blow on the top of her head. The blade split her head wide open, severed her ear and sank to her collar bone, causing instant death.

Wynn then attacked the daughter, who threw up her hands, and thereby lost three fingers. The blow split her skull. A second blow cut a horrible gash in her neck, and she sank to the floor. The girl died this morning.

Wynn then fled to his son's, two miles away, where, after relating his crime, he attempted suicide by cutting his throat, but was prevented. He was arrested today, and lynched by a mob while on the way to jail.

DEAD OR ALIVE

A Posse in Tennessee Will Bring in Sloan the Desperado.

Nashville, Tenn., July 25.—A letter received tonight from Cookeville statea that a posse of 100 men had been sworn in by the sheriff of Putnam county and placed in charge of Joe Spurrier, the famous revenue raider, who will lead the party to the home of Frank Sloan to take him, dead or alive, at whatever cost. Sloan, it is understood, rode into Cookeville Friday, after killing J. H. Ballinger and hunted for Postmaster Brosford with the intention of killing him. The citizens were terrorized and closed their stores. Sloan is now in his log hut six miles from Cookeville, is well armed and has his house barricaded. The posse was to have left Cookeville tonight and expect to return tomorrow with Sloan, dead or alive. United States Marshal Harrison, brother of the president, is at Cookeville directing operations.

A LIVELY PRIMARY.

Hot Times on a Hot Day in Chatham County.

RESULT OF THE ELECTION YESTERDAY.

Osborne, Doolan and Russell Came Out Ahead—A Free Fight at a Polling Place.

Savannah, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Chatham's first primary is over and the general result is, in some respects, decidedly unsatisfactory. There have been more rows, fist fight, cursings and arrests than at a general election, and the hard feelings generated on all sides will play a prominent part in the county and city election. From now on it will be a fight to the death between the Russell and the anti-Russell factions. Russell's fight on Major Ryals has made an issue on which he will be fought from now on. Waring Russell, the county treasurer, will have a harder struggle to retain his office next fall than he has ever known before. Such, at least, is the opinion expressed by politicians tonight, who realize the depth and intensity of the antagonism to Russell provoked by his interference in the legislative fight.

There were six candidates before the people. It has been generally acknowledged that William Osborn, a young lawyer, and Joseph Doolan, a reporter on The Morning News, would be elected. This proved to be the case. The real fight for third place has been between Major Ryals, Leonard Guerard and Patrick H. Gearon. The vote was apparently so close between the first two that the election remained in doubt until the vote for the entire city had been counted.

In the four city districts Guerard lead by 130 votes. Pooler increased Guerard's majority to 150. Mr. Guerard is a well-know real estate owner. He is about sixty years old and a bachelor. Doolan and Osborne are each twenty-six years old The total vote cast was over twenty-four hundred.

A Little Battle.

In the second district a general fight took place in Justice Sheftall's office, which was used as a polling place. A number of men were badly bruised by canes and chairs. This is the district to which the Ryals people directed the attention of County Chairman Charleton, claiming that fraud was contemplated by the Russell people, who were in charge, closing the office before the time set by the committee. The crowd insisted on fair play and broke in.

There is already talk of an independent candidate by the people who are opposed to Russell's domination in local politics. The three legislators nominated, it is understood, favor the re-election of Solicitor General Frazer.

THIRD PARTY IN PULASKI.

The Convention Held at Hawkinsville Yesterday—The Ticket Nominated.

Hawkinsville, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The people's party held their first convention in Pulaski county here today and nominated a full ticket. They selected persons for every county office and named two would-be statesmen for whom they will vote to represent this county in Georgia's house of representatives.

The meeting was not a bit exciting and large crowds of curiosity seekers formed. The proceedings were rather dull. The meeting was presided over by T. C. Allen, [illegible] district, and W. C. Solomon acted as secretary. The superior courtroom was pretty well filled, the crowd numbering about three hundred, made up of democrats, republicans and third partyites. A liberal estimate placed the number of pronounced third party men and those who were thought to be inclined that way at sixty, though this number did not vote in the nomination.

Messrs. James Cooley and J. D. Pierce were nominated for the legislature.

INTO SMITHEREENS.

The Third Party Bursts Up in Lumpkin County.

Dahlonega, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The party of the third part met here Saturday and parted—not in silence and tears—but with a split in their emaciated ranks. Several weeks drumming brought together seventy-three, the actual vote. J. W. Woodward, of The Signal, was nominated for representative of Lumpkin county over two others by four votes.

On the adjournment of the meeting, several third party men openly declared against Woodward and one bona fide farmer offered to bet a fine pair of mules and a wagon against $50 that Woodward would be beaten. These men are mad because the town ring of the party run the meeting and nominated a town man, both the other aspirants living in the country. The prediction now comes from both sides that W. A. Charters will beat Woodward with hands down. It is perfectly safe to say that the meeting represented at least half their county strength, as the day was fair and the ground too wet for farm work, and desperate efforts had been made to have a "big" meeting.

The third party papers up this way deny everything from a democratic source, but the weakness of the calamity party was thoroughly exhibited and can no longer be concealed.

Democracy Safe in Wilkes.

Washington, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The third party people, acting under the advice of their leader, Judge E. M. Anthony, have abandoned the idea of holding the primary that they had previously set for August 3d.

The reason for this action is the polling of three-fourths of the white votes in the county by the democrats in their primary.

John I. Hall for the Legislature.

Griffin, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Judge John I. Hall has been petitioned by four or five hundred of the leading citizens of Spalding county to make the race for representative from this county. The judge will accept, as he asked the people for the same place several years ago and they gave it to him. Now that they want him he will accept.

Pickett Gets the Delegates.

Jefferson, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The third party of Jackson county met in Jefferson last Saturday. The meeting was extensively advertised. Pickett was present and spoke. A ballot was taken and Pickett delegates were selected, 267 votes being cast. It had been predicted that 800 would be present. Jackson county is democratic and will give Carter Tate 400 majority.

Joint Discussion at Gray.

Gray, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The democrats and third party men had a grand rally here Friday. Colonels Whitfield, Bartlett and Dan Hughes addressed the crowd for democracy's cause and made fine speeches. Messrs. Joe Pottle, McCandless and several others spoke for the third party.

Judge Andy Calhoun in Turin.

Turin, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—A democratic club was organized here Saturday. Every white man in this district except one, the executive committeeman of the people's party, belongs to the democratic party.

Judge Andy E. Calhoun, of Atlanta, addressed the club in a speech sound in the faith. There was much enthusiasm.

Pickett Carries Jackson.

Rev. Thad Pickett carried Jackson county yesterday. He has a majority of the delegates to the congressional convention in the ninth district and is confident of getting the third party nomination.

THE THIRD PARTY CONVENTION.

The State Press Comments on the Issue and the Outlook.

From The Columbus, Ga., Enquirer-Sun.

We submit, in all earnestness, why should the democratic government of Georgia be overturned? The people can have no just complaint against it. The third party, in their convention and in their platform, prefer no charges against it. They could make none. It should be the pride of Georgians today that there does not exist on the face of the earth a government, within its powers, more essentially a people's government than that which now blesses our great state. Its officials, called to public duty by the people, are honest, conscientious and faithful. The public affairs are administered wisely under the laws. Surplus revenues are not wrung from the people, and the public money is spent with rigid economy. And it is a democratic government. It is stable, it is honest, and it is in sympathy with the people. Ought it to be changed? Would it be wise or safe to change it? Is there an intelligent, honest reason for changing it?

From The Rome, Ga., Tribune.

The third party convention has opened the eyes of the democrats to the fact that there is a fight on hand. Wednesday's convention showed that the strength of the third party in Georgia has not been overestimated. Some now go so far as to say that the electoral vote of the state is in doubt. This is clearly an extravagant estimate. Governor Northen will have a large majority, and through more than half the state the vote will not even be close. In three districts, however, the fight will be a hard one. The democratic nominees in the tenth, ninth and seventh districts will have their hands full. There will be no danger with a vigorous canvass, begun early and pushed to the close, but the slightest lethargy or lack of courage on the part of democrats in any of these districts will count heavily against them.

From The Macon, Ga., Telegraph.

The ticket is made up of men who were unknown until brought into prominence by their connection with the alliance two or three years ago. Now they are known only as agitators, given to extravagant speech and loose statement. There is nothing in their public record to inspire confidence or respect, and we see no reason why they should receive the support of any man who, in voting, considers only the welfare of the state. We think they will receive the votes of very few such men.

From The Augusta, Ga., Chronicle.

There is nothing in the personnel of the ticket, from Colonel Peek down, to strengthen the party in the state, and some of the nominees will certainly weaken it. The fight is on, and democracy will triumph as usual in Georgia.

From The Athens, Ga., Banner.

While The Banner has no fears as to the result, yet it is well not to underestimate the strength of the new party. In some sections of the state it has some following, but we believe this strength will decline as the sturdy farmers see the inevitable result of a division among the white people of the state.

From The Sparta, Ga., Ishmaelite.

There is no question of the strength of the party in some parts of the state, but the claims put forth by some of the delegates to overwhelming majorities were unreasonable to the point of utter wildness. The platform, like the wag's Dutchman, is "low up and high all around," as follows: The platform and the candidates are not calculated to terrify the democratic world.

From The Savannah, Ga., Press.

It is pretty safe to say that the people's party in this state is stronger now than it will be in October or November. As the campaign progresses the people will see how impracticable the people's party platform is, and they will have brought home to them the fact that by weakening the democratic party the chances for the success of the republican party, and consequently for the enactment of a force bill, will be greatly increased. A little sober thought will induce many of the democrats who are now acting with the people's party to go back to the democratic party.

YOU CANNOT ALWAYS FORETELL

By a Man's Record in Civil Life Whether or Not He Will Make a Good Soldier.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"You cannot always tell by a man's record in civil life whether or not he will make a good soldier," said Colonel Harry E. Goodenough, at the Laclede. "In my regiment during the civil war, were several of my old schoolmates, and I watched their conduct in the several trying positions in which they were placed with considerable interest.

"There was one young fellow who always showed the white feather in the little scrimmages at school. A boy half his size could bluff him, and he seemed to have a mortal dread of getting hurt. We nicknamed him 'Sissy,' yet that same fellow was always first and foremost in a charge, was brave even to recklessness, and earned a lieutenant's commission for gallantry in the first battle in which he participated. During the first day's fighting at Shiloh his left arm was shattered by a grapeshot. He went to the rear, had the wound bandaged, came back and stayed at the front.

"Another schoolmate, who was popularly supposed to be the embodiment of physical courage, always required a sergeant's bayonet behind him to hold him in the ranks. He would flunk at the first fire. The whistle of the bullet reduced him to a state of terror that was pitiable. During a skirmish I once found him crouching behind a log, his teeth chattering as with the ague. I ordered him to the front, and he got on his knees and begged me not to send him there to be murdered. Yet he had thrashed me a dozen times when we were boys. He would have fought Heenan with bare knuckles and gloried in it, even if he knew he would be whipped.

"The first came out of the war a one-armed major with a record for heroic courage; the latter was drummed out of the army for arrant cowardice. Yet both were brave men and both were cowards in a way.

"It requires a different kind of courage to face grape and canister from that required to stand up in a prize ring and fight to a finish. Some men may have both, but I think the combination a rare one.

"I have seen many a soldier of proved courage in a battle weaken before bare knuckles. I have seen many a bruiser try to run his nose into the ground when the flames leaped from the hostile battery."

FIELD.—Rev. Dr. Field, brother of the late Cyrus W. Field, says the estate left by the deceased is a mere remnant of the fortune he once possessed. When he returned from his trip around the world, about ten years ago, he was in receipt of an income of $300,000 a year, but his fortune has been almost entirely dissipated. What will be received by the heirs will depend on the result of the suits against him instituted by people who lost money through the firm of Lindley, Wiechers & Co. Mr. Field never drew out his $500,000 as special partner, and it was lost in the wreck. It has been said that Cyrus Field lost nearly four million dollars by the failure of his son. It is believed that the outcome of the suits brought and now standing against the estate will have no effect on the disposal of the life insurance of the deceased, which amounted to nearly two hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

YOUNG BUT TOUGH.

The Wayward Young Bryant Boys Still Held.

THEY PUZZLE THE DETECTIVES.

Too Young to Punish, and Too Bad to Turn Loose, What's to Be Done with Them?

Two wayward boys laughing at their sister's tears and distressed looks—laughing even at the iron bars that surrounded them.

It makes a story of youthful depravity only equaled by the career of Mr. Julius Bone, age thirteen.

Two tougher young citizens than John and Henry Bryant would be hard to find. They are the boys arrested for burglarizing a store.

Yesterday morning the sister of the two boys, who lives near the barracks, heard of their arrest and came to the police station after them. She said the boys were aged seven and eight, and were so mischievous and wayward that nothing could be done with them at home. She begged that they be released, but it was decided by Chief Wright to hold them and find a home for them if possible.

A case harder of solution than this was never presented to the detectives. They have two tough young burglars whom they have not the slightest hope of reforming if they are turned loose, and who are too young to punish. What can be done with them? If the boys are liberated neither their mother nor sister can control them, and they will continue their evil ways.

After considering the matter Chief Wright and Captain Thompson decided to hold the boys for a day or so, and see if a home for them could not be found in that time. The mother is very poor and the boys are too young to work and Chief Wright thinks if they were placed under proper influences that they could be rescued from thier evil ways. Both boys are very bright, but are serenely indifferent as to their surroundings. The sight of iron bars does not chill their buoyant spirits, but they make a merry chamber of their gloomy, barren cell.

A CHORUS GIRL'S WOE.

She Is Stranded, and Her Trunk Is Attached for a Board Bill.

One of Frank Deshon's buxom ex-chorus girls came to [illegible] yesterday afternoon. There's a pathetic tale of woe that came to [illegible] the girl's trouble. She joined the chorus just before Deshon came to Atlanta for his first engagement and remained with the company until it disbanded. Then she came to Atlanta in the vain hope of catching on with one of the companies playing here. But that was not an easy matter, and in the meantime the girl's board bill was added to.

Yesterday, in sheer desperation, the girl started to leave the hotel without paying her bill. She got to the train and would have been gone in a few minutes had not the National hotel clerk, where she had been boarding, arrived on the spot with a bailiff. The trunk was taken in charge and carried back to the hotel. It contained all the girl's possessions and she had to follow.

"I didn't mean to be dishonest," she sobbed, "but I hadn't a cent. I don't know what on earth to do. I can't get work, and have no friends to help me. I had to go on the stage to earn a living when father died."

AN EX-POLICEMAN.

Jim Beard, Well Known in Atlanta, in Trouble in Chattanooga.

Jim Beard, an ex-policeman of Atlanta, is in trouble and in jail in Chattanooga.

A letter to a friend in Atlanta, in which he appeals for help, tells the story of his trouble and incarceration. Beard has a wife and children yet living in Atlanta. He only left the police force some months ago.

It seems that he has been boarding with a widow who has several small children. One day last week one of the children, a small boy, came in crying and said that Beard had been beating him. The boy was black with bruises and his appearance showed that he had been used roughly. They lady had Beard arrested and he was fined heavily by the recorder and sent to jail on a charge of assault and battery.

Beard bore a good reputation while on the force here and is an ex-confederate soldier. His friends here are surprised at his break.

Abraham Lincoln.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Abraham Lincoln's name was Abraham Linkhorn," said Major Dan Seabright, at the Southern. "His origin, when contrasted with his subsequent greatness, must be a sad rebuke to those who prate loudly of birth and breeding. It well illustrates Burns's truism that 'a man is a man for a' that.' It proves that in America a child of the humblest origin may reasonably aspire to the highest honors within the gift of the nation, to the most exalted niche in the temple of true greatness. I do not suppose Lincoln, wise as he was, really knew his own father. He was three or four years old when Linkhorn, a farm laborer, who worked with the negroes in Kentucky, and took his pay in salt pork and whisky, 'tuk up' with his mother, as the natives called it when a man and woman entered into marital relations without the sanction of a minister. I knew Linkhorn and the mother of the future president quite well. They were very ordinary and very illiterate people. Whether his great talents were descended from some ancestor generations back—were due to atavism—or were inherited from an unknown father, is a question that cannot now be satisfactorily solved. The fact that he took the name of Lincoln when he grew up would indicate that he did not regard Linkhorn as his father. His was a life begun in shame and ended in glory. We can well afford to forget the frailties of the mother while contemplating the virtues of the son."

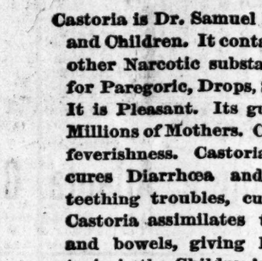
"THE BEST OF ALL I CONSIDER APOLLINARIS."
GEO. W. CHILDS.
Prop'r., PHILA. PUBLIC LEDGER.



On July 26, 1680, the earl of Rochester died at the age of thirty-three.

He was one of the wittiest men of his time, and he boasted that for five years he had never drawn a sober breath. He was a close personal friend of Charles II, who took good naturedly the following mock epitaph, written by Rochester:

Here lies our sovereign lord, the king,
Whose word no man relies on;
Who never says a foolish thing,
Nor ever does a wise one.

You will do an exceedingly wise thing, if you come at once and inspect the stock of Trunks and Valises that we are just now offering to buyers. Nothing like them in town. Every grade that is popular and prices way below the regular.

The Alaska

Refrigerator.

FACTS WORTH CONSIDERING

The qualities sought for in the refrigerator are Preservation of Perishable Food and an Economical Use of Ice.

The economical use of ice depends entirely upon the principle involved, the construction of the Refrigerator, and in utilizing all the cold air.

Dry atmosphere and uniform temperature can be obtained only by a perfect circulation of the air in the Refrigerator, and its condensation in the ice chamber.

The Alaska is constructed upon strictly scientific principles, by which low temperature and dryness of air are naturally and inevitably obtained.

The Alaska possesses a provision chamber free from odor.

The Alaska produces better results with less ice than any other refrigerator.

The Alaska is a dry-air refrigerator, and the best one ever patented.

TRIP OF THE EDITORS.

They Had a Delightful Time While in Mexico,

AND DESCRIBE SOME THINGS THEY SAW

In the Country of the Montesumas—List of Georgians in the Excursion Party, Etc.

El Paso, Tex., July 25.—(Special Correspondence.)—The cars containing the Georgia Weekly Press Association rolled into El Paso early in the morning, after a long and dusty journey over the arid plains of western Texas.

The party was met at the train by the executive committee of the Franklin Club, who tendered them a cordial invitation to visit their clubhouse. The invitation was accepted, and the party was taken at once to the beautiful clubhouse in El Paso street, where delicious refreshments were served.

The city of El Paso lies at the foot of the Sierra Blanco mountains. The city has to depend entirely upon irrigation for water, for the rains are few and far between; the last one was about seven months ago. The population (over fourteen thousand) gives the Pass City a very lively aspect, for all the people throng the streets on cool afternoons. In the center of the town is quite a large park, which is a favorite resort for the residents. On a cool evening, this place presents a unique scene. The gayly attired Spanish senoritas come over from the Mexican city of Juarez; the poor Indians crowd the walks, offering their "dulces," or fruit dipped in sugar, for sale; and the many Americans amuse themselves by commenting on the appearance of the ladies who drive by. A military band usually plays in the pavilion, where dancing is indulged in by the young people.

In Mexico.

Juarez is the Mexican city just across the Rio Grande river. The old name was Paso del Norte, but a feeling of respect for Benito Juarez, the Mexican George Washington, who resided in this place for some time, caused the people to adopt his name, which, by the way, is pronounced Wharrez. The city is not a very beautiful one, none of the Mexican ones are—but it is one of great age. The gallant and pious Juan Ponce de Leon founded it in 1520. The old church there is still used as a place of worship.

The houses are all built of adobe, or sundried brick. They are usually planned in such a manner as to leave no opening to the street except the door. On the inner side is a court yard, with all the rooms opening into it. As it never rains here, this court yard is partly covered over with awnings, and has numerous divans and chairs scattered around in it.

The Georgians in the Party.

The Georgia party consists of the following persons:

S. T. Blalock, vice president of the association, Fayetteville News; Charles D. Barker, corresponding secretary, Southern Star, Atlanta; P. T. McCutchen, secretary, Franklin News; J. W. Anderson, Covington Star, treasurer; W. S. Clayton, Piedmont Republican; D. A. Baker, American Union, Royston; C. A. Bond, Hartwell Sun; H. C. Edenfield, Swanesboro Pine Forest; M. M. Allison, State of Dade News, Trenton; Miss M. Hornady, Schley County News, Ellaville; T. Cuyler Smith, Atlanta Constitution; Misses Kate and Lillian Booz, Cedartown; H. D. Wakefield, Atlanta Mail and Express; Miss Florence B. Williams, Valdosta Telescope; C. M. Morcock, Meriwether Planter, Woodbury; M. J. Conley, East Point Plowboy; D. J. Howard, Early News, Blakely; J. L. Williams, Baptist Leader, Cumming; E. L. Rainey, Dawson News; C. M. Furlow and Miss Lizzie Furlow, Madison Madisonian; George Patterson, Lincolnton News; W. Trox Bankston, New South, Ringgold; G. N. Gordon, Yatesville Enterprise; R. C. Wilson, Fulton Courier, Atlanta; N. S. Edwards, Jr., Dawson Journal; Robert L. Moye, Cuthbert Liberal; W. M. Hobby, Sylvania Telephone; Vivian L. Stanley, Dublin Post; J. R. Beverly, Dispatch and News, Hawkinsville; L. F. Lord, Hazlehurst Chronicle; W. C. Martin, Spring Place Jimplecute, Dalton; Horace M. Ellington, Ellijay Courier; J. L. DeGive, Atlanta Business Directory; C. H. Harper, Jonesboro Enterprise; Ira C. Van Duzer, Elberton Star; G. W. Williams, Bullock Times, Statesboro.

The Georgians have been very well treated by the western railroads, especially the Texas Pacific and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe.

In Albuquerque.

Albuquerque, which lies in the highest portion of New Mexico, was reached Wednesday night.

The Commercial Club tendered us an informal reception at their elegant club rooms. That night dancing was indulged in until a late hour. A drive over the old and new city in the morning and a visit to the Pueblo Indian village took up the entire day.

WOMAN WAS EMANCIPATED.

A Courtship Scene in the Era of Righted Femininity.

From The Detroit Tribune.

It was many years hence, and the movement for the emancipation of woman from the thraldom of ages had been crowned with complete success.

Two persons were sitting in the front parlor. Even in the dim, uncertain light of the coal fire—the supply of coal was not yet exhausted—it was plainly evident that they were a slender girl, a brawny youth. She was on her knees, with clasped hands and tearful eyes. He was on the sofa, with downcast mien and many a hot, tumultuous blush.

"I may confess my love," she exclaimed passionately.

His big brown mustache twitched noticeably and he swallowed the lump in his throat.

"Why so cold?" hotly demanded the kneeling woman.

And then, acting upon the sudden impulse, she seized his hand and contemplated through blinding tears the callouses upon the muscular palm.

"Be mine," she urged.

The young man was much distraught, and his lower register bass voice trembled when at last he spoke.

"It's so sudden," he faltered, and nervously fingered the hem of his coat.

She sighed.

"Edwin, you must have suspected."

"No," he replied simply. "It's not the place of a man to suspect. It is for us only to await the asking."

In adoration she gazed upon the agitated figure before her. Fairly intoxicated with the vision she forgot herself for a moment. With a sudden movement she threw her arms about the shrinking form of the youth, and in a moment would have imprinted a kiss upon the dewy lips.

With a frantic effort he freed himself.

"You stop," he fiercely cried, "or I'll scream."

"Edwin."

"Go away from me."

"Do you dismiss me forever?"

"I do. Go."

As she left the room she crushed her spring hat over her eyes and groaned. People who met her on the street noticed that her face was pale and set and that she was muttering bitterly.

It was many years hence, and the movement for the emancipation of woman from the thraldom of ages had been crowned with complete success.

The Twin City of the South.

From The Winston, N. C., Sentinel.

Winston-Salem comprises two municipalities, but is really one community. A single street separates the towns. It has more plug-tobacco factories than any other town in the world. Its population, now 16,000, has increased during the last ten years about twelve thousand. It is the most progressive city today in North Carolina. Over three hundred new houses were built last year, and it increased its taxable property over one million dollars. It has over two hundred and twenty-five wholesale and retail stores, postal delivery, telephone exchange and electric cars and lights. Its new hotel cost over one hundred thousand dollars. The product of its tobacco factories is nearly four million dollars a year. Its climate is excellent and its schools unsurpassed in the south.

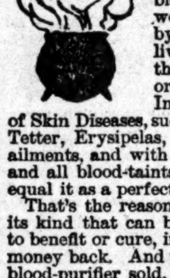
Knights of the Golden Eagle.

Savannah, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The grand castle Knights of the Golden Eagle meets here tomorrow. Grand Chief T. L. Bishop, of Atlanta, presides. Knights will be present from all over the state. One hundred delegates are looked for.



A boil hurts, but it helps. It shows you plainly what you need. It wouldn't be there, if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. And they would be, if you'd take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood-taints, there's nothing that can equal it as a perfect and permanent remedy.

That's the reason it's the only medicine of its kind that can be guaranteed. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back. And that makes it the cheapest blood-purifier sold, for you pay only for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

Outfit that very properly contains a supply of which adds to the enjoyment of all the other dainties, and makes a picnic a picnic indeed.

Hires' Root Beer

A 25 cent package makes 5 gallons of this very popular beverage.

Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you some other kind is "just as good"—'tis false. No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires'.

Politics and Business.

In the current North American Review Mr. F. B. Thurber argues that a presidential year is just as good for business as any other year.

Apparently, Mr. Thurber makes out a strong case, but the business men of the country do not agree with him, and it is almost a maxim that politics and business cannot flourish together. The New York Telegram takes this view of the matter, and estimates that the shrinkage in the volume of business occasioned by a presidential election is about 10 per cent. Now as the ordinary volume of internal commerce for the four months preceding the election should amount to about $5,000,000,000 it will be seen that, if this estimate is correct, the country loses about $500,000,000.

Must we lose this sum every four years, and more as our interests grow and multiply? It is a dead loss. The money thus wasted never comes back. Business men are in a serious mood when they discuss this subject. They feel the inconvenience of the depression. Once every four years they practically lose a third of a year because people are uncertain as to the tendencies, measures and policies of the next administration. Capital hesitates, credit is curtailed, profits are cut down, industry lags, and thousands are thrown out of employment.

This is the situation now. Ask the money kings of Wall street and the capitalists of Boston, the manufacturers of New England and of the west and south, and the merchants everywhere.

It is hard for a sensible, business-like people to submit to such conditions. It is discouraging to have our progress so frequently interrupted. The fathers of the republic were wise when they first favored seven years for the presidential term, and it is to be regretted that they changed their minds.

Act. Two or three our politics less expensive. Business, development and progress should not be hampered in this way. Capitalists attach too much importance to a presidential election. Their experience should teach them that no matter which party wins, money and property will be in no danger. No matter what agitators and reformers may say, the American people have a profound respect for the rights of capital and property, and they are not going to interfere with them. It is just as safe to proceed with great enterprises this year as it will be next year or the year after. But it will take the capitalists a long time to find this out. It is the fashion to be very cautious and very close during a presidential year, and so every man with a little surplus cash follows the example of the big money kings.

It strikes us we have too much politics. It is a necessary evil, but let us have less of it. It demoralizes men, makes them neglect their affairs, and causes several million able-bodied men to waste a good deal of time that should be devoted to earning a living for their families.

It is all very exciting—this campaign flurry, but business is a bigger thing than politics!

An Old Subject.

It is a significant fact that, while the producers of cotton are justly complaining that low prices have left them with an empty bag to hold, the cotton manufacturers are enjoying comfortable profits. It is true that the low price of the raw material has added considerably to these profits, but this only adds to the significance of the fact itself.

The comfortable profits to which we have referred are made the subject of an article in a Boston trade paper. The question arises, if the eastern and northern cotton mills are able to count up profits in spite of the natural disadvantages under which they labor as to climate and situation, why would not cotton mills in the south pay still larger profits?

This brings us back to a subject that is musty with age and worm-eaten. Able editors have grown gray discussing it; powerful presses have been worn out in reproducing lengthy disquisitions thereon; and still the south continues to send its cotton abroad for manufacture. Nevertheless, the fact remains that our people would be a great deal better off, so far as their prosperity is concerned, if one-third or one-half of their cotton crop was manufactured here. They would be better off if it were merely turned into yarn.

But when is the day coming? Mr. Edward Atkinson, we believe, has recovered from his attack of doubt as to whether cotton goods could be manufactured in our sunny clime, and is now engaged in experimenting on a theory that the food-waste of the country would feed all the poor and many others besides on the isle of the land. This theory is a solemn one, to say the least of it, and we have no more right to question it than Mr. Atkinson has to question ours that the south will ultimately be the site and center of cotton manufacturing.

These things move slowly. It will be years before the food waste of the country could be utilized to make the poor comfortable and happy, and it may be even after cotton manufacturing makes itself at home in the cotton patch. Nevertheless, until that day comes the south will never be able to reap all the profits that belong to its great crop.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia.

The existing conditions under which the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railway is conducting its business will not be misunderstood by well-informed persons.

This great line of traffic and travel is not a bankrupt concern by any means. It is merely temporarily embarrassed, owing to the business depression now prevailing and other causes over which its management had no control.

The receiver, Major Henry Fink, is perhaps the best equipped railroad man in the south, and under his personal supervision shippers will feel satisfied that they will be furnished with the proper facilities, and that the road will be conducted in an able and business-like manner.

Major Fink will take a personal interest in the movement of trains, look after the details of the service, and make it first-class in every respect. Under such management it will make no difference to the public whether the road is in a receiver's hands or not. It is a splendid property, and will not be allowed to lapse into slack methods.

Very Much Alive.

Not being able to find room in his two newspapers for his flights of fluency, Editor Halstead is compelled to harness the syndicate industry in order that he may have a larger and a more resounding auditorium in which to pitch the swelling volume of his manly voice.

In the Sunday papers, Mr. Halstead returns to the discussion of the force bill. It is a juicy subject, but it is not one which he contemplates with pleasure. Those who are familiar with the antics of the faithful watchdog as he capers around the lot trying to find a temporary place of concealment for his most savory bone can appreciate the emotions of Editor Halstead, and the temper with which he deals with the force bill. He cannot bury it in his two newspapers, and so he goes trotting around in the flower garden of the syndicate, cutting a lonely and mournful figure.

He declares that the force bill is dead—that there is nothing in it—that it is a last year's bird's nest. The insincerity of this is manifest. We have no doubt that Mr. Halstead would kill the force bill if he could. We have no doubt he regards it as a vicious piece of party policy as dangerous to its friends as to its enemies. On more than one occasion he has risen superior to the sectionalism of his party. But Mr. Halstead is a newspaper orator, and not a republican leader. If the force bill were "not in it," as he suggests, he would have no occasion to sign his name to a two-thousand-word statement of the fact. He perceives that it is a serious mistake from the point of view of policy for the force bill to be "in it," but when he says it is not he is merely exploiting his desires.

The force bill is very much "in it." The people know it and feel it, and the practical politicians who are close to Mr. Harrison do not deny it. The force bill is pending. The republican platform gives it advertisement in its very first declaration. Johnny Davenport, the gifted republican, is not dead, and Mr. Harrison seems to be in good health. Mr. Halstead remarks in his airy way that the bill was invented and insisted on by some evil-minded person who was no friend of the president, and yet it is not on record that the president made any serious objection when the bill was up for discussion in 1890.

On the contrary, the record goes to show that Mr. Harrison sent for certain senators and impressed them with the belief that the measure was practically his own. He brought all the power and influence of his administration to bear in favor of the force bill, and republican senators who voted against it did so in the face of the knowledge that they would incur his displeasure.

That is why the force bill is "in it." Mr. Harrison has not changed and the republican party is still the same. The force bill is a republican measure, and it represents the purpose of the republicans to make negro suffrage pan out in their interests by foul means. That is all there is to the force bill. It thoroughly represents the republican party.

Mr. Halstead is pleased to tell us what would happen if there were no negro problem at the south and he presents the situation in rainbow colors. But we must accept the situation as it is, and face it. Mr. Halstead's party has the fatal gift of sectionalism, and if there were no negro question in the way it would invent some issue on which to harry the people of the south.

A Great Habeas Corpus Case.

In our telegraphic columns, yesterday, it was briefly stated that Colonel H. Clay King, of Memphis, sentenced to be hanged August 12th, for the murder of Lawyer Poston, relied mainly in his petition for a habeas corpus upon the fact that the jury which convicted him visited Arkansas during the trial.

Perhaps this famous case deserves a fuller statement of facts. Colonel King in his petition to Judge Jackson, of the United States court, for a writ of habeas corpus alleges that Juror Smith had expressed the opinion that he was guilty and should be strung up and that he and other jurors were allowed to converse with other parties; that Juror Mustin held private conversation with several persons concerning said case, while the same was before the jury for its impartial consideration. While the jury was in this case it left the state of Tennessee and went into Arkansas without the knowledge of the petitioner, and went from point to point in said state entirely beyond the jurisdiction of the court in which the case was pending. Thereby the jury lost its judicial character, and ceasing to be a jury, found a verdict which it had no authority to do, and the same was a nullity. The petitioner avers that he was convicted on the testimony and judgment of twelve persons who were not jurors when the pretended verdict was rendered, and he avers further that after the trial he learned that the said Smith and Mustin had formed and expressed opinions hostile to him before they went on the jury. He claims that these grounds are violations of the federal constitution.

The action of Judge Johnson in granting the writ of habeas corpus, returnable on Thursday of this week, is approved by The Memphis Appeal-Avalanche. That paper makes the point that while the jury was in Arkansas the judge of the Shelby county criminal court had no more authority over it than he would have had if the jury had been in Europe. The Appeal-Avalanche goes on to say:

> There is another point in Colonel King's case which is not noticed in his petition above referred to, and that is the refusal of the supreme court to hear him speak upon his case after the decision of the court affirming the judgment against him. This, we regard, presents a grave question. As the prisoner's life was involved, the strictness of the criminal law in his favor would apply with full force. Before his application to speak was denied we think the grounds of the application should have been demanded of him, so that it might appear whether he desired to speak in his proper defense.

Considered purely in its legal aspects, without regard to the romantic and sensational circumstances of the case, and the prominence of Colonel King as a soldier, lawyer and author, the matter will excite general interest, and its progress in the courts will be closely watched.

The New Baseball Season.

Today is an eventful one to the eight principal cities of the south, and incidentally, of course, to the entire section. The race for the second baseball championship will be ushered in this afternoon, and that means a great revival of interest in the national game throughout the Southern League.

The conclusion of the first division of the season finds the clubs and the league as a whole, in excellent condition. The interest manifested by the people has been all that the most ardent enthusiast could have hoped, the affairs of the league have been well managed, and the result is while minor leagues are tottering and falling, the southern presents a firm front, and is here to stay. This speaks volumes for the general prosperity of the south, for it is only when a people are prosperous that they patronize amusements.

On Saturday the slate which bore the record of the first championship contest was wiped off, today a new record begins. The double season plan is an experiment tried in all the leagues this year. At the outset some of the sporting writers were against the plan, but now all, or about all, agree that it is a success. Here in the south too much cannot be said in advocacy of the plan; it has been the salvation of the Southern League. The new season finds the weaker clubs strengthened and all in excellent condition to make this race the most interesting in the history of baseball in this part of the country. The Southern League can be relied on to give decidedly fast ball in this new season and the club that wins the championship will be a good one indeed.

Atlanta can be counted as in the race. We finished fifth in the first race, but we propose to be in this one from the start. Manager Morton is a man of splendid ability and experience; he possesses the absolute confidence of the people of the city, and he has gathered together some excellent players. It only remains for him to make them "play ball" and the second championship is ours.

Play ball, Manager Morton! The eye of Atlanta is on you.

A Pulsing Paragraph.

The society column in our Georgia newspapers is a work of art and a thing of beauty, but North Carolina is pushing us closely.

Here is a matchless paragraph from The Vance Farmer, a paper published at Henderson, N. C.:

> Miss Rosa B. Gill, who has been dispensing those gleaming attractions and fond delights which break in entrancing ripples of sweetest witchery upon the heart, and start its pulsings out in waves of rapturous dreaming, left home last Thursday for eastern Carolina to visit her uncle, Mr. J. T. Gill. She is a maid indeed of grandest mold, for a thousand charms she doth unfold, and drown all hearts in that sweet spell, where purest, fondest raptures dwell.

Now, such a paragraph has body, life, light and color. It is practical and yet picturesque and rhythmical. It is a picture, a poem, a symphony.

There is no telling what the future has in store for the society column.

The moment the third party begin to monkey with the negro vote that moment they open the door to evils from which they will be unable to run.

Affairs are getting rickety in North Carolina. The third district congressional convention recently refused to endorse Cleveland and Stevenson and the democratic platform. Hard work and democratic organization are needed in that state.

Uncle Jim Anderson, of The Covington Star, telegraphed us yesterday that the Georgia editors were snowballing each other on Pike's peak. When the telegram was received in Atlanta the weather here lacked only ten or twenty degrees of being as hot as it was in the summer resorts of the north. Even the editor of The Billville Banner was in a profuse perspiration.

What General Snowden, of Pennsylvania, needs is a small grain of common sense.

An electric storm may be described as a thundering fine display.

Southern white men who are becoming assistant republicans on the theory that the force bill is dead will not be happy when the measure is put in active operation.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The democratic convention of the third congressional convention in North Carolina, last week, voted down a resolution endorsing Cleveland and Stevenson. Then it voted down a resolution endorsing the Chicago platform. When the nomination of a candidate for elector was in order, the majority withdrew, held a meeting of their own and nominated a Weaver elector. Strange to say, the leading opponent to the resolution endorsing Cleveland and Stevenson was Mr. F. M. Simmons, chairman of the state democratic executive committee.

If the police continue on their present line the hobo will have to go. White and black vagrants should be sharply looked after. The police know where to find them.

Will Carnegie's locked out workingmen feel like voting the republican ticket this fall?

Violence is a bad thing when it comes from organized labor. It is no better when it comes from organized Pinkertons.

As Mr. Frick is temporarily disabled, perhaps it would be well for Mr. Carnegie to return and manage his business at Homestead.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "The shooting of Mr. H. C. Frick is, to say the least, a most unfortunate affair." The Inter-Ocean is becoming a remarkably bold and outspoken paper.

JUST FROM GEORGIA.

A Georgia Noonday.

The moveless clouds in crazy crowds are burned into the blue,
Where, wild and white, hot shafts of light
come gleaming, streaming through;
And even the rain that glitters down in warm
drops, one by one,
Is but the perspiration from the baking, broiling sun!

Has Changed Hands.

The Hamilton Journal has changed hands, and Mr. W. A. Farley is succeeded by Mr. A. E. Williams. The latter, in his salutatory, delivers a little sermon, as follows:

"The new editor has already had a great deal of advice, both wise and otherwise. Do you know, my dear friends, that there are just two things that kill men, viz. vice and advice? Now the editor is always thankful for good advice from any source whatever, but he reserves the right to reject any and all of it according to his own best judgment."

That Georgia editor who announces that he "left his paper in charge of his wife and the devil," is now traveling with a free pass and a hope of a hereafter.

A Summer Orator.

His speech was full of fire:
He warmed up with their cheers;
And finally he melted all
His audience to tears.

Mr. Fred Lewis is doing excellent work on The Albany Evening Herald. The paper has been wonderfully brightened by his pen. He is an able assistant to Editor McIntosh, and will make a name for himself in Georgia journalism.

A Georgia editor has been arrested for carrying concealed weapons. He deserves no sympathy. The office is the place for the office towel, and a man who carries it about with him should be held amenable to the laws of the state.

Editor Cooper, of The Rome Tribune, in a leading editorial intimates that he is going to reason the third party back into the fold. As there are nine hundred and ninety-nine reasons why they should return, we shake hands perspiringly with Brother Cooper and cheerfully contribute a ton of ice to his campaign.

"One of the Few."

From The Carrollton, Ga., Free Press.

Somebody is writing some firm political editorials in The Atlanta Constitution these days. They are not only forcible and well put but a spirit of conservatism and good hard sense pervades them that is too rare in the political newspaper. The Constitution is one of the few journals in the south that has in our opinion, a proper conception of the political situation, and its manner of treating the same is the only safe way if we would win back our democratic brethren, who have wandered off after strange gods.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

A Constitution man, meeting the Rev. Dr. J. W. Lee yesterday, asked him when he expected to move to Manchester.

"I have no idea," replied the doctor. "You know as much about it as I do."

"Why, I thought you were interested in the place?"

"Only as I am interested in all of Atlanta's beautiful suburbs. I am not financially interested in Manchester or in any other real estate enterprise. As for moving there, I know nothing about it. I have been preaching eighteen years and never bought a piece of land or made a trade. I stick to my work, and have no desire to go outside of it."

"H. W. P.," West End, will please send to The Constitution office for a small contribution left for the two poor women referred to in the communication printed in yesterday's Constitution.

Dr. F. P. Smith has returned from an extended tour of the north, which has caused him to be absent from the city for more than two weeks. While traveling in the north he visited Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Niagara Falls. He declares that there is no more delightful an outing to be enjoyed by the American citizen than a week or two in the "sleepy hollow" of the Hudson river valley. Major W. F. Slaton and the southern educators, who attended the convention of the National Educational Society, have also returned.

Billy McCarter, who has handed cigars out over the polished counters of the Kimball house for years and years, has left his stand behind the cigar case there and is now "going it alone" with an attractive corner in Jacobs's drug store.

Mr. Sam W. Reed, the gifted young editor of The Athens Daily Banner, has returned home after a visit to his parents in Atlanta. He says the democracy of Clarke county is organizing with a firm resolution to beat the third party at the polls this year, but states in the same breath that a hard fight is ahead for the democrats of several counties in the eighth district. Editor Reed has been quite sick recently, but his many friends will be glad to know that he has about recovered.

Mr. R. J. Finley, of the editorial staff of The Review of Reviews, New York, is registered at the Kimball. Editor Finley is traveling through the southern states in the interest of his popular magazine, and will be in Atlanta several days. The Review of Reviews is growing more popular every day, and is already a favorite periodical on the tables and in the libraries of the literary people of America. Mr. Finley is engaged in arranging for a number of articles from southern writers. Several contributions already from the pen of Loulie M. Gordon, of Atlanta, have been attractive features to The Review of Reviews.

Mr. Lee J. Langley, formerly with The Constitution, and later of The Athens Daily Ledger, is in the city. Speaking of the work of this young journalist, The Athens Banner has the following to say: "Mr. Lee J. Langley returns to Atlanta today. While here in Athens Mr. Langley has made quite a reputation as a journalist, and has scores of friends, who regret to see him leave. Mr. Langley is a forcible writer and is well informed. He has just written for The Dictator, a monthly periodical, published in New Orleans, an article upon the subject of 'Dissatisfied Labor,' which will appear in the August number. The article deals mainley with the Homestead and Briceville troubles, and as the writer was present at Briceville during the coal mine riot, the article will be of especial interest."

Mr. Claude Estes, the well-known lawyer, of Macon, passed through Atlanta yesterday en route to Macon from the northern resort lands, where he has been spending the heated term.

GEORGIA POLITICAL NOTES.

The Columbus Sunday Herald takes time by the forelock and nominates Hon. W. A. Little for a place in the Cleveland cabinet. The Herald says:

"Captain Little is a constitutional lawyer of unexcelled ability and would add strength and character to the Cleveland cabinet. He has a strong following in Georgia and if the attorney generalship should come to this state, Little is unquestionably the man for the place. If the endorsement of the people of Georgia is worth anything, Captain Little could win over any opposition he might have. The Herald has no doubt of this. After the November election, if Captain Little decides to allow the use of his name in this connection, he will have a following so strong that Mr. Cleveland cannot fail to appoint him to the place, if it goes to a Georgian."

The late Judge Martin J. Crawford was not a politician, as the word goes. A writer in The Columbus Herald gives this gossip concerning him:

"Judge Crawford was first appointed associate justice of the supreme court by the governor, and was afterward unanimously re-elected by the legislature. I happened to be in Atlanta when the legislature elected Judge Crawford, and a member of that body told me that Judge Crawford absolutely refused to ask a single member of the general assembly to vote for him. He attended to his judicial duties daily and did not even mingle with members of the assembly. His colleague on the supreme bench had opposition, and Judge Crawford's friends told him that he had better mingle with the legislators, as a combination might be made which would develop opposition to him and probably defeat him. To this the lamented Crawford replied no; that the constitution of the state intended to make it plain that judges should steer clear of politics, and that he would not violate the spirit of the constitution, even to insure his own re-election. But he was unanimously re-elected."

The Albany News and Advertiser says that Dr. J. H. Pickett, a prominent and well-known citizen of Worth county, who is a very ardent supporter of the third party, is trying to make a deal whereby the republicans will fuse with the third party people. Dr. Pickett stayed in Albany long enough Friday to confer in a very confidential way with one of the most prominent republicans in that section. He went to the postoffice and sought a conference with Mr. B. F. Brimberry, a leading republican, and that conference seemed to be altogether a very harmonious one. They got down to business in great shape and the more they talked the more interested they became. While in the midst of this earnest conversation one of Albany's leading citizens happened to step into the postoffice and descry them in this confidential position. The Albany citizen is a close personal friend of Dr. Pickett and knowing that he could joke with him in a friendly manner said, "Well, you've got down to your knittin', have you?" While it is not directly charged that a deal is being made, still, everything seems to point that way.

Wilkes county has a system of political organization which works like a charm. A democratic club is organized in each militia district, and one at the courthouse, known as the central club. The different clubs throughout the county make frequent reports to the central club, and in this way the condition of the party in the different sections of the county can be kept up with, and the campaign effectively carried on. It has been decided to adopt this plan in Lincoln county, and the democrats in the different districts in the county have been requested to organize democratic clubs at once and report to the central club. A campaign committee has been appointed, consisting of one man from each club in the county, and they will meet at Lincolnton on August 13th.

The Lincolnton News says there is a movement on foot to get all the sawmills in the county to suspend operations until after the election. The woods are getting so full of candidates that a tree can't be cut down for fear of its falling on one of them.

The Griffin News says that Judge John I. Hall was in that city Saturday, returning from Atlanta, and announced to his friends, in reply to the numerously signed petition presented to him, that he would accept the nomination for representative from Spalding county. He said he did not see how he could well spare his time from his legal business; but, said he, "When I wanted to go to the house, and afterward to the senate, the people stood by me and granted my wishes, and now that they want me to go, it would be very ungrateful not to comply with their request." The News comments on the judge's chances as follows:

"This practically settles the question, as there is no man in the county strong enough to contest for the place against Judge Hall, and we are assured of the brainiest representative in the next house of the whole state."

The Macon Telegraph says that local politics will be active in that locality this week, and adds:

"The weather is warm, but the campaign will be warmer. It is generally supposed that all candidates who expect to be in the legislative race will announce in a few days. Soon after the contest for the legislature is over, the nomination to county offices will commence. As yet no opposition to present incumbents has been manifested. Besides the regular state election in October, there will be the presidential and congressional race, and then comes the election of four aldermen. The balance of the year will be lively with politics."

A VERY POINTED CARD

About Fulton County's Action in the Congressional Race.

Atlanta, July 23, 1892.—Editor Constitution: "A Friend of Mr. Livingston" complains again in Sunday's Constitution about Fulton county's alleged hasty action in selecting delegates to the district convention. I respectfully submit, on behalf of the committee, that there is no justification for any criticism on that score.

The convention meets on August 17th. Clayton county acted some weeks ago. Douglas county, which was supposed to be for Mr. Livingston, acted nearly two weeks ago, and this action was ordered by a committee composed principally of Mr. Livingston's friends. DeKalb county had already ordered an election for July 30th when the Fulton county committee met, and two other counties had prepared to act on August 2d.

Mr. Livingston has not complained at any other county. Why should he complain as to Fulton? I see no justice and reason for insisting that the large and influential county of Fulton should wait until every other county had spoken before lifting her voice.

So far as the suggestion goes that it deprived Mr. Livingston of an opportunity to be heard, that amounts to nothing. He has canvassed this district several times this year.

He spoke all over the district in April while congress was in session. He came home in May to attend the state convention. He was here when Clayton acted, and was in Douglas when it decided to act. He is here now. He has been in the district nearly every month this year, and at least twice this month. Can he not come at one time as well as another?

Moreover, the farthest day proposed by his own friends for Fulton's action was August 2d—only one week later. Congress will not have adjourned then any more than on July 26th. The only difference on August 2d will be that it will be after DeKalb's action instead of before. Now, why has not Fulton as much right to act on July 26th as DeKalb on July 30th? Mr. Livingston's friends have not criticised the action of DeKalb. Indeed that action was ordered by his friends, as was the action of Douglas.

Now, the truth is, there was good reason for Fulton's action before DeKalb. There was great uncertainty in DeKalb as to who Fulton would choose, and it was important that Fulton would set that uncertainty at rest and let it be known who was her choice. There were a number of gentlemen talked of in Fulton, and the committee considered that it its duty to the county required it to so arrange that that uncertainty might be cleared away.

Any criticism against the fairness of that action is unjust. And in the light of the unchallenged action of every other county in the district, it is absurd. Some one had to be obliged to act first. Fulton is the third county to act, and no man can give a sound reason why she should be the last.

In this matter the committee has no desire to do any injustice to Mr. Livingston. But the committee is just as much entitled to fair treatment from him and his friends as he from it. And any intimation that it did not accord him just treatment in this action is unjust and unfair and amounts to an assertion that Fulton county has less right than any other county to have its influence felt and its voice heard in district affairs.

My opinion is that the complaints made are utterly insincere, and that Mr. Livingston never had any purpose to run a ticket in Fulton.

INTERVIEW WITH JUDGE HILLYER,

As Printed Under Date of July 14th.

"Is there anything new in the congressional campaign?"

"Yes; the candidacy of Colonel Hulsey is something new, and to me, unexpected. I never believed Colonel Hulsey would enter the race until he did actually appear, and I told hundreds of persons that he would not."

"Why did you think he would not?"

"Because he told me so. Now, understand me. I have no doubt he was perfectly sincere when he said this. We met on the street and fell into conversation on the subject. He spoke of having been in one of the counties and found a strong feeling for me to become a candidate, and stated that if I entered the race he would not. Within a few days afterward, I became a candidate, and I did so largely on what Colonel Hulsey had told me.

"He afterwards, through the solicitation of friends, he says, but after long delay and after stating he was not a candidate, changed his mind and entered the race. Colonel Hulsey and I have long been friends and I do not question his sincerity in changing his mind. But however sincere, was he fair? You see, I had in the meantime gone on a month or six weeks with the canvass as between myself and Colonel Livingston, and my friends think I had practically won the fight.

"Judge for yourself. Clayton and Douglas counties have already acted, and I have 22-3 votes to Colonel Livingston's 11-3 in those two counties. What intelligent man expected, before Colonel Hulsey became a candidate, that Livingston would carry either Fulton with its six votes, Campbell, two votes and DeKalb, four votes? There are only three other counties—Walton, Newton and Rockdale, with a probability of my carrying two of them.

"Indeed, since my visit to Walton I felt absolutely sure of carrying that county. But, if we strain a point, and suppose them all for Colonel Livingston, that would only make a total of 9 1-3 votes for him. Was not that his outside limit, leaving me 14 2-3 votes? Are we not justified in claiming that I won the fight?

"Now, mind, up to this time, Colonel Hulsey had kept aloof, and I had been left to try conclusions with Colonel Livingston alone when just at this juncture Colonel Hulsey enters the fight. Now, I repeat, is it fair?

"Many of Colonel Hulsey's friends are also my friends, and his candidacy makes a diversion in Livingston's favor; but after all, I do not see how any possible combination of events can prevent my nomination. Fulton is the next battle ground and my friends are confident of carrying it, and to that I shall diligently address my attention."

COLONEL NESBITT CHALLENGED.

F. C. Davis, of Newton, Wants to Meet Him in Joint Debate Today.

Mr. F. C. Davis, of Newton county, attacks, in a card published below, Colonel Nesbitt's administration of the agricultural department, and challenges the commissioner to meet him in joint debate at Stone Mountain today.

Mr. Davis's challenge is as follows:

"Atlanta, Ga., July 25.—R. T. Nesbitt, Commissioner of Agriculture: I hereby challenge you to meet me, in joint debate, at Stone Mountain tomorrow at 4 o'clock p. m., when I will prove every charge I have made against you to be true, and you shall acknowledge them to be true, and your own public denial a falsehood.

A Card from Mr. Small.

Editor Constitution—I am forced to break the resolution I made when I became a candidate for congress in this district, namely, not to trouble the ntwspapers with any comcnications for personal or political vindications.

But in today's Journal appears an alleged report of the Winnston meeting on Saturday that 500 honest men in Douglas county will instantly pronounce wilfully and utterly false.

In that report appears the following paragraph:

"He told how Sam had, not long since, come to him and asked that he use his influence with the state democratic executive committee to get them to employ Sam to canvass the state for democracy."

When Colonel James uttered something like the above I then thought he was seeking to humorously juggle with some remarks that passed between us on an occasion when I was his guest and supposed I was protected by the usual honor and chivalry of a Georgia gentleman.

I now see, since this last report comes from one of his hirelings, that he viciously thrust at my personal integrity. In reply to the whole matter, I desire to say in most emphatic terms that I never approached, solicited, or proposed to Colonel James, or any other living or dead man, that I might be used or employed by the democratic state committee, to make democratic speeches, or render any other form of service, for pay, honor, or pleasure. Any statement to that purport, from Colonel James or any other source, is a total, graceless and malicious misrepresentation.

I have never dreamed such nonsense and certainly would not have chosen Colonel James as my go-between if I had ever desired to enact such a scheme. If Colonel James is the man I have taken him to be, and which he so loudly declared himself to be, he will himself, in his cooler hour, honorably acknowledge the wrong he has done me in this affair.

As to my "hiding behind a tree" when there was a riot imminent, the cowardly lout who says so is beneath the distinction of a drubbing, or the contempt of a kicking. I only left the platform to help pacify some of the most honorable men in the county, who had taken offense at the unfair and insulting conduct of Colonel James and were strongly moving to deal him prompt punishment. I did not want to see a riot, or Colonel James seriously damaged by his disgusted and indignant fellow citizens, and I went out among them—and help to restort order. It was not the fool work of toughs that day; it was the uprising of the outraged manhood of men whom Colonel James knows, and evidently of men whom he feared. At any rate, his at once changed his tirade of personal, indecent and brutal abuse and for the only time during his speech mentioned any of the great issues we were present to discuss.

In conclusion, I am not roased; there is not a burn or blister on my anatomy as a result of the Winnston engagtment. I will risk some egotism in saying that I shall have to encounter more brains and intellectual caloric than I did at the Winnston before that culinary calamity befalls me. I hope this is the first and last resort I shall have to make to the press in response to personal villification during this campaign. In lieu thereof I will try to employ the quicker and more effective measures that belong to men who are not strangers to the customs and courage of the Georgia climate. Vtry respectfully,

SAM W. SMALL.

A Voter Asks a Question.

Editor Constitution—Is there any fairness exhibited in politics by candidates who are themselves over-anxious for office? Some few of the Hillyer men are still claiming that the workingmen and all others who desire representation did not have any right to force Colonel W. H. Hulsey for congress simply because other self-appointed candidates in their anxiety for office had previously announced.

If that is the rule that should govern then how can we expect the people to support Grover Cleveland when it was known for four years that Harrison would be a candidate, and also that Hill had carried New York long before Cleveland had announced his willingness to serve the people? How will such democrats vote in November? Will they vote for the first or second because the third did not get the consent of all opposition before he consented to become a candidate? "The first shall be last, the last shall be first," "because the will of the people is the will of God."

What does all this mean? Does it mean that the people shall be trampled down that the politician may rule? When cliques and tricksters rule the people mourn. Does all this mean that the bosses shall rule or the people may rule in this the fifth district?

OBSERVER.

HE WAS DRILLING,

When His Gun Was Accidentally Discharged,

AND THE BULLET PIERCED HIS HEART.

Tragic End of One of the Most Prominent Negro Leaders in the City. Story of the Affair.

John Hill, one of the most prominent negroes in Atlanta, put a bullet through his own heart yesterday afternoon.

The shooting was purely accidental.

Hill was a young negro, well educated, quite a politician, was a delegate to the Minneapolis convention, a leader in colored society, prominent in colored military, a leader in colored military circles, a member of nearly all the colored organizations, and was well thought of.

For a long time he held a position of trust in the postoffice. He has some property in the city. He was a son-in-law of Jim Goodlet, one of the negro leaders in the city.

Recently Hill has been employed by the Cincinnati Liquor Company at 46 Decatur street.

Yesterday afternoon, just before 4 o'clock, he took out a parlor rifle to clean it up. He sat down at a table in the rear of the saloon, and another negro who was employed by the company sat down on an opposite side of the table, the two talking while Hill worked.

Hill was a military enthusiast, and the talk turned upon drilling. Hill became quite warm in the discussion, and got up, and with the parlor rifle he had been cleaning began an illustration of the correct way to drill.

He went through the mnual of arms, handling the rifle in a very correct and military fashion, and several people gathered around and admired his expertness.

Suddenly, while he was still manipulating the rifle, there was a loud report, and Hill sank down, crying as he did so: "Oh, mercy, I've shot myself."

He was insensible when he reached the floor.

The accident was caused by the trigger of the gun striking against the table, and the muzzle being pressed against Hill's left side the bullet bored its way through his heart.

Dr. A. R. Danforth was hastily summoned, but the negro was too far gone, and died in a few minutes.

The shooting created a great sensation on the street, and in less than a half hour hundreds of negroes crowded round the place. So great was the crowd that the doors had to be closed and officers stationed at each door to keep the excited negroes back.

Hill was one of the best-known negroes in the city. An inquest will he held over the body this morning. A jury of inquest was empaneled yesterday afternoon, but after viewing the body it adjourned until today.

AT THE EDGEWOOD.

"Said Pasha" Sung Before a Large Audience by the MacCollin Opera Company.

If you were present last evening at the pretty little Edgewood Avenue theater you no doubt went away greatly pleased with the charming production of "Said Pasha" that was given by the MacCollin Opera Company.

If you were not highly edified at the exquisite manner in which this opera was sung, then there is a questionable doubt as to whether you can be pleased.

It is true last night's production was noticeably crude here and there, this was perceptible; but weighing the good qualities with those which might be considered inferior, it was admittedly an excellent interpretation of the work.

The original and appropriate stage business introduced made a brilliant and telling effect, and the costuming was artistic and attractive.

The audience was in an extremely fine humor from the rise until the fall of the curtain, and its appreciation of the performers' work was demonstrated in no undecided manner.

Mr. Pearson, the robust basso in the title role, eclipsed any of his former attempts on the Edgewood's boards. His powerful voice together with his stately bearing and intelligent conception of the role of "Said Pasha" guarantees the above assertion. The audience was exceptionally liberal in bestowing upon Mr. Pearson the heartiest applause.

Mr. MacCollin, as Hodad, and Mr. Leonard, as Nakey, came up to the expectations of their most ardent admrers in their roles. It requires two fine comedians to properly interpret these characters and you certainly have everything to say in Mr. MacCollin's and Mr. Leonard's favor for the original and amusing way in which their work was done last night.

Miss Hall acts and sings her role with a vivacity and intelligence which are truly admirable.

Mr. Apple's Torrono was artistically sung. Mr. Apple will grow better in this character and a treat may be expected from this quarter after he has become familiar with everything that characterizes the portrayal of a Mexican.

Miss Leyton and Miss Caseday sung their parts in an entirely satisfactory way. Mr. Burrows and Mr. Moulton were good. Mr. Ralph Harding, who sing the baritone role of Hassan Bey, deserves especial mention. Mr. Harding being an Atlanta boy appeared more or less nervous before a home audience, yet he must get the credit for having done some good work last night.

"Said Pasha" will have a good week's run no doubt, for it is already a big favorite. The same bill will be repeated tonight.

Marriage in High Life.

From The Memphis Commercial.

Another agile and vivacious can-can artist and star of the burlesque opera has thrown herself away on a dissolute British nobleman. Connie Gilchrist is, or was, the name of the heroine, and earl of Orkney the title of the hero of this characteristic romance in high life. The duke of Beaufort, by virtue of his position as a paramour of long standing, gave the bride away, while another illicit lover acted as best man. The wedding breakfast was served, we are told, at the bride's house, in Manchester street—a splendid mansion, built for her by the said Beaufort, as a monument to her shame. It is not to be supposed, however, that her happy husband allowed thy thought of these things to cloud the sunshine of his wedding morn, and we may be sure that the vivacious Connie was none the less charming and animated on that account. British nobility is fast becoming an object of universal contempt, and the Orkneys and Beauforts are unconsciously serving the cause of democracy in hastening the end of hereditary privilege. What a farce it is that such creatures should be law makers, by right of blood, and transmit that right to the children of such abandoned women as Connie Gilchrist!

No Lack of Alliteration.

From The St. Paul Globe.

It has been claimed that one alliterative phrase did the business for Blaine and Logan. If that is so, there really doesn't seem to be much hope for Harrison and Reid. They have been Burchardized to date as follows:

Pinkerton's protection pills.
Reid's rat record.

TODAY'S PRIMARY.

A Full Story of the Work at the Polls.

HOW THINGS WILL BE CONDUCTED.

Interesting Interviews with All the Candidates for Congress—Nothing Tame About This Primary—Eh?

Hulsey or Hillyer?

"You pays your money and takes your choice."

The political homestretch is on and the candidates for congress are coming in today with a vim and ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" accompaniments.

There will be nothing slow, nothing tame about this primary today. It is going to be as lively as the day is long, and there will be fun in every precinct.

Go out early and vote before the cool of the morning is past.

Fulton county democrats will be at their places today full of the old-time zeal and loyalty to the principles for which their forefather tolled. In the matter of selecting a democratic standard bearer in the congressional campaign it may be relied upon that Atlanta and Fulton county will give democracy such a strong vote today at the primary polls as to shame the efforts of dissenters in the very outset.

How It Will Work.

The candidates for nomination at today's local primary are Colonel W. H. Hulsey and Judge George Hillyer.

Colonel Livingston, who at present represents the district, has not and will not have a ticket in the Fulton county contest for nomination

The tickets before the democrats today are these:

For Hulsey—R. C. Mitchell, Arnold Broyles, W. T. Gentry, Jacob Haas, John L. Tye, J. S. McLendon, J. E. Nabell, John Colvin, George W. Hawkins, A. McD. Wilson, R. F. Griffin, Charles Northen.

For Hillyer—Samuel B. Hoyt, A. Q. Adams, D. J. Baker, S. M. White, R. W. McCown, W. S. Thomson, Aaron Haas, E. T. Allen, John A. Corbally, John H. Mecaslin, James R. Wylie, W. J. Garrett.

The city precincts will be as follows:

First Ward—Near corner of Broad and Mitchell streets. It may also be arranged to have a ballot box at 12 Mitchell.

Second Ward—At courthouse.

Third Ward—Corner Fair and Fraser streets, at [illegible] store.

Fourth Ward—Corner Wheat and Jackson streets.

Fifth Ward—256 Marietta street, next door west of D. E. Williams's lumber yard.

Sixth Ward—118 Peachtree street, on first floor of Griffin building.

Country precincts will be open for voting at Oak Grove, Buckhead, Peachtree, Edgewood, Collins, Cook's district, Adamsville, Bryants, East Point, South Bend and Blackhall.

The polls in the city precincts will be opened early this morning and will be to voters until 6 o'clock in the afternoon. In the country places votes cannot be polled later than 3 o'clock. Voters should bear this in mind during the day.

The names of the managers of the precincts have not all been secured yet, the democratic executive committee of the county in many instances being unable to find the right men for the place.

In the Edgewood precinct the managers first named by the committee refused to act. Two of them, it is said, have left their moorings in the democratic sea and drifted with Sam Small into the prohibition purty, and hence could not serve.

The Chairman's Address.

Mr. Morris Brandon, chairman of the county executive committee has issued the following card to the voters who carry tickets to the boxes today.

Atlanta, Ga., July 25, 1892.—To the Democratic Voters of Fulton County: You are hereby notified that the polls for the democratic party for tomorrow, the 26th instant, will be held at the following places:

First Ward—Near corner of Broad and Mitchell streets.

Second Ward—At the courthouse.

Third Ward—Corner of Fair and Fraser at Coulter's store.

Fourth Ward—Corner of Wheat and Jackson streets.

Fifth Ward—No. 256 Marietta street, next to D. E. Williams's coal and lumber yard.

Sixth Ward—No. 118 Peachtree street, on the ground floor of the Griffin building.

The precincts outside of the city, at the common court grounds.

Managers will be notified in person and will without fail have the polls open at 7 o'clock a. m. and until 6 o'clock p. m.

By order of the democratic executive committee of Fulton county, Georgia.

MORRIS BRANDON, Chairman.

This Is Pertinent.

Following is the resolution of the committee telling who will be allowed to vote today:

At said election every white democratic voter of Fulton county, who was registered in the last county registration, shall be permitted to vote, and none others except such persons as will file with the managers affidavits that they are registered on the registration lists now being prepared by the tax collector. All persons shall vote in their own wards or precincts respectively.

Colonel Livingston Explains.

Colonel Livingston came up from Covington yesterday, and was seen by a Constitution representative last night.

When asked what he would do about putting out a ticket today, the colonel looked serious, and said:

"I shall not present a ticket tomorrow."

"Why not?"

"For the reasons that I have had no opportunity to canvass the county, and only this day to select a ticket as required by the committee, which was impossible to do. It would have required some time to have selected a ticket to compete with those of my opponents. This delegation method is all wrong. Each candidate should have been required to stand before the primaries upon his own merits, and not upon the merits of his friends.

"If the vote was to be taken direct for the candidates, then I could have entered the race with more assurance of polling my full strength."

"Why did you not leave congress several days ago and fix up your ticket?"

"The committee on appropriations, of which I am a member, had important bills to conclude both in committees and in the house, and I could not cinsistently leave."

He Does Not Approve It.

"You are aware of the fact that the committee for the fifth district requested or recommended primaries, and that no primaries be held sooner that August 1st, and are you aware of the statute provided by the last legislature governing primaries?

"In that law this provision occurs:

Be it further enacted, That every such primary election shall be held at the time and place and under the regulations prescribed by the rules of the party organization or association holding the same, etc.

"Now, the organization, or association, that provided for the nomination of a congressman for the fifty-third congress, provided for primaries, and not to be held sooner than August 1st, and this should have been complied with to the letter in each county."

As to Judge Stewart.

"What about the charge that you took the advantage of Judge Stewart two years ago, while in congress, and canvassed for yourself?"

"There is not one word of truth in the assertion.

"In 1890 Colonel Peek announced for congress against Judge Stewart. Stewart came home and made speeches in all his counties save two or three, about the time he closed this partial campaign.

"I wrote him to meet me at the Markham house, which he did; and there we agreed to a joint debate upon such rules as mutual friends should agree upon. I had not then announced as a candidate, neither had I made a single speech in the district or asked a single man to vote for me for the nomination. Judge Stewart very kindly proposed that I should make speeches in the counties in which he had spoken, and then he would join me and continue the canvass. This I did not do. We began at Douglasville together and continued through the campaign up to the date for primaries in Walton county.

The fixing of that primary was done without my knowledge or consent. Not one speech did I make or one vote did I seek until after a perfect understanding and agreement with Stewart."

Colonel Livingston says he will wage an active campaign in the other counties, beginning in DeKalb at once. He will then go to Walton and make several speeches.

He is confident that he will carry DeKalb county, and says the skies are clear and the waters smooth and blue in the other counties for him.

Colonel Hulsey Is Happy.

Colonel W. H. Hulsey was down town a little later than usual last night.

But he was happy and was with his "friends and a heap of 'em," as he cleverly stated to a Constitution representative.

"What have you to say on the eve of the battle?" he was aked.

"Oh, well, nothing much. My friends know my heart and they know it is all theirs, so what need I say.

"I am perfectly contented with the outlook. I am confident that I will get the nomination in Fulton county. The campaign has been dignified and free from all personalities except now and then when a thing was said that ought not to have been said. There has certainly been no uncalled for abuse between the other candidates and myself."

Colonel Hulsey is one of those happy-hearted fellows with a disposition as sunshiny as a bright May day. He was surrounded by his friends at the Kimball until 11 o'clock last night and they were all hopeful and happy.

Judge Hillyer Complains.

Judge Hillyer was likewise also very companionable last night. He was in his office until 11 o'clock with some friends.

"I will carry the county safely," said he with confidence.

"I have tried to conduct this campaign fairly and feel that I have had much to be thankful for and but little to regret.

"But there is a determination on the part of Colonel Livingston's friends not to run a ticket in the campaign. This is an unexpected turn in the campaign and a surprise to me and my friends.

"Really there has been quite a systematic attempt on the part of some very prominent men, friends of Colonel Livingston, to throw his vote against me. This attempt, however, will very largely fail for I am second choice of a large number of voters. In a business of that kind it is always very hard to deliver the goods.

"Besides there is something intrinsically unfair in the notion of two men making war on one, and the public mind has a sort of instinct by which it is very apt to rebel against any such effort.

"I think the scheme will very largely increase my vote.

"I have made absolutely no combination with anybody, but am running a strictly fair race, and if my friends turn out I do not see how it is possible for me to fail to carry the county by a handsome majority.

"The truth is, I think, Colonel Hulsey entered the race too late and after so many persons had committed themselves it does not seem to me possible to turn the tide, even with any help the Livingston men may give.

"One other thing and that is I'm endeavoring to comply in good faith with the rules and requirements laid down by the committee as to hired workers and the running of vehicles. But I leave the public to judge themselves as to all the methods of the campaign and we will see the result when the votes are counted."

The State Convention.

There is considerable excitement in the race of the delegates aspiring to go from Fulton county to the state convention.

They are also to be elected at the primary today and there are two tickets in the field. These tickets are as follows:

For the present statehouse officers in full and W. C. Glenn for attorney general.

HOKE SMITH,
JAMES W. ENGLISH,
W. H. VENABLE,
JOHN B. GOODWIN,
JOSIAH CARTER,
P. J. MORAN,
L. Z. ROSSER,
AARON HAAS,
B. F. WALKER,
JAMES M. MOORE,
J. J. FALVEY,
WHEELER MANGUM.

For all the present statehouse officers except Commissioner of Agriculture R. T. Nesbitt and for Colonel John T. Henderson for this office.

AMOS FOX,
HARVEY JOHNSON,
B. M. BLOUNT,
P. J. MORAN,
JOE JACOBS,
JOE HIRSCH,
JOE GATINS,
ZACH MARTIN,
A. L. HOLBROOK,
ZACK CASTLEBERRY.

Mr. P. J. Moran, whose name also appears upon both tickets, says:

"While I appreciate highly the compliment of being placed on the ticket made up by Judge Henderson's friends, it was done without my knowledge. I had previously consented to serve on the Nesbitt delegation and, therefore, my allegiance is due to that ticket. Commissioner Nesbitt has made a good officer and deserves the endorsement of a re-election."

CITY NOTES.

Cap Joyner came down from his country home near Marietta yesterday and is again at work. Since his return from New York the chief has not been well, but the few days rest on his farm has given him new life and vigor.

Mr. B. Davison and Mr. E. M. Pearce, both of the firm of Douglass, Thomas & Davison, left yesterday for the east They will be absent for a month or six weeks and will take in Saratoga, Long Branch, Niagara and will then visit Montreal. Their many Atlanta friends wish them a happy and pleasant vacation.

"The Bloody Thirtieth" will hold a grand reunion at Riverdale, in Clayton county, one mile from Maddox Park, on next Friday. A special train will go out over the Atlanta and Florida road, leaving here at 8 o'clock in the morning. A great time is expected and several prominent orators will speak.

There was a full grown sensation out on the corner of Orme and Simpson streets yesterday morning, caused by the finding of a human skeleton. The gruesome find created considerable excitement for a few minutes, but it was soon found that it belonged to a young medical student.

Mr. Eugene Wilson, proprietor of the Trio Steam Laundry, has just returned from a trip to Niagara Falls, Saratoga and other northern resorts.

Mr. A. Rosenfeld, the well-known Whitehall street clothier, returned from New York yesterday, bringing with him an invoice of one of the finest stocks of fall and winter goods fetched south.

ATLANTA IS FIFTH,

And Not Sixth, as the Reported Standing Indicated.

THE NEW SEASON OPENS TODAY,

And Atlanta Will Measure Strength with the New Mobile Team—How the Clubs Play.

Fifth place is what Atlanta gets in the first Southern League pennant race.

New Orleans, Macon and Memphis are below Atlanta.

And Macon doesn't bring up the tail end either, thanks to George Burbridge and Witoski and Altmayer and Lilienthal, the backers of the manager Atlanta sent to the Central City.

Atlanta is proud of Macon and proud of Manager Burbridge.

The Southern League met yesterday in Montgomery and during the meeting the standing of the clubs was made officially. That moved Atlanta from sixth place up to fifth and pushed New Orleans down. It broke the tie which was supposed to have existed between Macon and Memphis for the last place and gave Macon the lead.

The tables which The Constitution has been printing from time to time have been sent out by President Genslinger and were presumed to be correct, but when the league meeting pulled out all the schedules yesterday it was found that the president's work was not correct. The meeting designated Mr. Hart, of Atlanta; Mr. Bradbery, of New Orleans, and Mr. Holl, of Montgomery, as a committee to examine the official scores of all the games played and that examination gave Chattanooga the pennant with Montgomery twenty-four points behind. Mobile, Birmingham, Atlanta, New Orleans, Macon and Memphis follow in the order named.

A special to The Constitution last night from Montgomery says:

Atlanta Goes Up Higher.

Montgomery, July 25.—(Special.)—The Southern League held a special meeting here today in the parlors of the Elk's club, Vice President Erwin presiding. The cities present were Atlanta, Birmingham, Mobile, New Orleans and Montgomery.

Messrs. Hart of Atlanta, Bradberry of New Orleans and Holt of Montgomery, were appointed as a committee on scores. This committee took all the scores of the games played by the Southern League clubs during the first season, and after working all day the committee reported on the standing of the clubs.

On account of the official scorers not sending in the scores promptly, it was decided to strictly enforce section 68 of the league constitution imposing a fine for not sending in the score promptly. The vote was unanimous.

Macon left Chattanooga on July 6th without playing the game scheduled for the day and a former meeting of the league gave the game to Chattanooga.

On motion of Montgomery the matter of enforcing a fine against Macon for so doing was deferred until Macon could have a hearing.

After thorough investigation the league decided that Flock of the New Orleans club, did not deserve suspension on account of the trouble in the game at Mobile July 17th.

The contest for first championship was close between Montgomery and Chattanooga, and all official scores not being in it was found difficult to reach a decision, but after thorough investigation it was found that Chattanooga had won the first pennant and it was so decided.

Congratulations were wired to Manager Sullivan.

The official standing of the league clubs is as follows:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.
Chattanooga. . .	82	52	30	.634
Montgomery. . .	84	51	33	.607
Mobile.	79	41	38	.519
Birmingham. . .	80	41	39	.512
Atlanta.	82	37	45	.451
New Orleans. . .	81	36	45	.444
Macon.	81	34	47	.415
Memphis.	80	32	48	.400

THE GAME TODAY.

Atlanta Will Start the Fight with Kelley's Combination.

The fight for the second pennant of the Southern League begins today.

And a mighty hard fight it's going to be.

The first four battles will be witnessed in Atlanta, Macon, Birmingham and Chattanooga and every one will be stubbornly warmly contested, as each of the eight clubs wants to be credited with pulling first blood.

Atlanta will open with Mobile and Kelly, the Irishman manager of those blockheads, says he is going to pull down the first game or be found trying mighty hard. Acting Manager Smith smiles when he hears of Kelly's boast and assests that the gentleman from the shrimp-eating district won't be in it.

Montgomery will give Birmingham an opportunity to even up old scores but Charley Levis intends to rub it in on the Magic City people if he can. Those two Alabama towns don't love each other a little bit and the fight between them will be about as hot as some of those Birmingham furnace fires get to be,

Macon, with Manager Burbridge in uniform and on the line, will try to take the Pelicans into camp. But Ab Powell, with his team of new, hard-hitting fellows, may succeed in showing Burbridge that the new men he has brought home are not strong enough to have their way.

Chattanooga, the champs, will entertain the rejuvenated Memphians. That team from the Bluff City has almost an entire new membership and every one is a good first-class ball player.

The work all over the league will be worth watching today.

And Brisbine park will be about the best place in the south to see it as every game of the afternoon will be reported and posted on the score board by innings. That alone will be worth the gate money. Add to that the opportunity of seeing the contest between Mobile's black-clad ball tossers and Morton's men and the evening will be one full of interest to those who go out.

Both the Atlantas and Mobiles were out at the park during the afternoon and did some good hard work. Every man on both teams is in good shape and the game today will be one of the most interesting ever seen at Brisbine park.

The game will be called at 4 o'clock and the teams will be:

ATLANTA.	POSITION.	MOBILE.
Wadsworth.	Pitcher.	Wittrock
Dixon.	Catcher.	Trost
Motz.	First base.	Leitenburg
Ardner.	Second base.	Gilks
Graham.	Third base.	Westlake
Smith.	Shortstop.	Langford
Hill.	Center field.	Hazen
Long.	Right field.	Frank

This array of players is printed for the benefit of the patrons of the game and not for those who want to bet on the result.

Manager Morton was not in the city last night and no one knows but that he may make a change before the game begins.

The sale of grand stand and box tickets began yesterday at Kuhrt's and was quite heavy. The sale will continue at that place today up to half-past 1 o'clock, when the boards will be removed to the grounds.

Season Tickets Called In.

The season complimentary tickets have been called in, and all parties holding them are requested to hand them over at the gate. Some of these tickets have found their way into the hands of parties not entitled to them and they will be taken up when presented at the gate.

New tickets will be issued by the management to those who are entitled to them.

Birmingham Answered.

The Birmingham papers have been jumping on Atlanta for the past few days, declaring that the Atlanta team was way over the salary limit.

The clever writer in The Chattanooga Times has answered the Birmingham kickers, and here is what he says:

"Birmingham is kicking against Atlanta's National League team, and the Magic City papers say that a glance at the salary list of Atlanta's club will show that she is way over the eight-hundred-dollar limit. A glance at the salary lists of the Chattanooga, Macon, Memphis, Birmingham, New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery clubs will probably reveal the same startling(?) facts. As for Atlanta, she has a good club, but it is nothing extra. Chattanooga easily beat it three out of five games, and Macon as easily took two out of three. The other clubs are just as strong as Atlanta, and the Birmingham papers would do well to follow the mote-beam proverb with reference to the salary limit."

Diamond Dust.

Manager Morton will be home tomorrow.

Wadsworth will work hard for today's game.

Will Macon release Schmidt or Bob Hart, or neither?

Hays, of the Mobile team, is a Mobile boy, so is Frank.

Jack Kelly will go home broke if he loses today's game.

Chattanooga will not keep Dan Friend, but the whole town seems stuck on McGann.

Westlake will be on third for Mobile this afternoon. Westlake is playing good ball.

Dixon's throwing to second is worth the price of any game.

Eby, Memphis' new shortstop, is hard to turn down anywhere.

Donaghue, Long and Hill make the fastest outfield in the south.

President Genslinger is in New York, but will return the first of the month.

Ted Sullivan is working hard to get Murphy, the great western outfielder—and it looks like he's going to get him.

Rumpus Jones will not come south yet. That may not be pleasant news to either Kelly or Burbridge, but it's true, al lthe same.

Langsford, Mobile's new shortstop, came very near wearing an Atlanta uniform. But that was before Pop Smith was within reach.

Baseball in Kingston.

Kingston, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—There was a good game of baseball played here Saturday between Spring Creek and Kingston clubs, the latter winning by a score of 19 to 0. The same clubs played a game on Spring Creek grounds on July 16th, Kingston beating Spring Creek 13 to 6. They will play another game soon to complete the series.

Albany Could Not Beat Macon.

Albany, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The Macon team played ball here today with Albany's home team. Hart pitched for Macon and Gagen for Albany. Gagen pitched a fine game but was poorly supported. The Macon boys were too much for Albany and the score stood 19 to 5 in their favor.

READY TO FIGHT.

Tom Ward is Now Ready to Meet Daily in the Ring.

Tom Ward, the light-weight pugilist who refused to meet Daily a few days ago, is now ready to encounter that gentleman in the ring.

The backers of Daily have insisted that the refusal of Ward to fight was a square back down and was caused by the fear that Daily would frail him out. But Ward says that he is a better man than Daily and he is ready to show him the strength of his muscle.

He is willing to meet him any time within the next ten days in a catch-weight fight and challenges Daily to meet him within that time.

The smart girl who keeps up with the latest quirk of fashion doesn't part her hair any longer, unless it's distinctly becoming to her; it is distinctly becoming to so few faces and so dreadfully unbecoming to so many. That is why Lady Fashion frowned at demure locks recently, then took a comb and fuzzed them all over the top and turned the classical braids near the nape of the neck into a becurled, rather rebellious knot high up on the top of her pretty head. Who wants to wear braids at the nape of one's neck such weather as this any way? One must do one's hair high for comfort's sake and then, with a rose or two or a pretty pin stuck through the high locks a girl is simply irresistible. This high hair dressing displays to such advantage, too, the soft curves of the neck and the pretty little tendrils of hair lying so lovingly against the ivory skin at its nape.

Satin slippers, simply shaped and simply ornamented are the finest and most elegant for summer wear. These must all match one's light summer gowns and those in pale evening shades are ornamented with crepe lisse rosettes or gold buckles. A pair of very low cut black satin slippers with tiny beaded bows are charming for morning and afternoon house wear. It is a noticeable feature in both shoes and slippers that they have lower heels than they did a season or so past. Those preposterously high French heels now give a foot a loud air, no matter how fine the shoes or elegant the hose worn with them. There is no question about a foot's looking very much better in a moderately high heeled shoe, and the comfort of them compared to the once popular Parisian absurdities, cannot be gainsaid.

Bunch of Violets—For Two.

Put into a mixing glass a spoonful of sugar, one-sixth of a spoonful each of benedictine, maraschino, anisette, vermouth,. creme de vanille and chartreuse and two ponies of cream. Then fill the glass with ice, freeze the liquids to a jelly and strain into long glasses.

The Reliever.

The white of an egg in the bottom of a glass, the juice of half a lemon, a spoonful of sugar, two-thirds of a glass of fine ice, two-thirds of a measure of Jamaica rum, and one-third of port wine. Shake well for a full minute and strain into a thin glass.

Ladies' Delight.

Into a large, thin glass put a spoonful of sugar, a cup of cold coffee, two-thirds of a measure of brandy and one-third of Jamaica rum. Fill the glass with ice, stir well, ornament with ice cream and berries and serve with spoon and straw.

Le Bon Boire—For Four.

Put into a large glass, with ice, equal portions of maraschino, anisette, creme de roses, creme de vanille, parfait amour, creme de the, celestine, creme de cocoa, cognac, and Benedictine. Shake well and strain into fancy glasses.

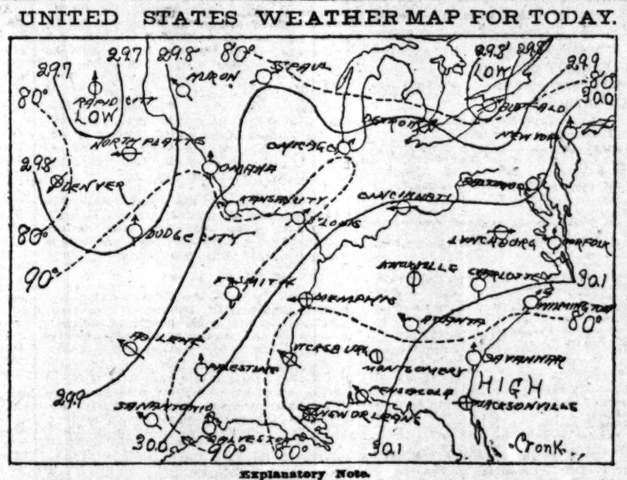
UNITED STATES WEATHER MAP FOR TODAY.



Explanatory Note.

The weather symbols on the map are as follows:

CLEAR FAIR CLOUDY RAIN SNOW

Arrows fly with the wind. Dotted lines traverse regions of equal temperature. Figures at the ends show the degree of heat. Unbroken lines traverse regions of equal barometric pressure. Figures at the end of an unbroken line, as 29.9, 30.0, 30.1, etc., show that the air along the line if high enough to balance that many inches of mercury. Areas of high pressure are accompanied by a clear atmosphere, and "lows" by a moist air, clouds and rain.

Little rain fell yesterday, but that which was reported in the eastern gulf states. The heavist—1:50 inches—was recorded at Mobile.

Monday's temperature was but a continuation of the heat that has pervaded the whole country during the past week. Though the day was warm in Georgia, the maximum temperatures averaging 91 degrees, yet nearly all states in the north had maximums several degrees higher. For instance in Atlanta the maximum was 89, while in St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit and New York city the temperature went up as high as 94.

The high barometer of the south Atlantic coast and a low is in the northwest and there is also a low in the northeast. As winds blow outward from a high to a low barometric area, warm southerly winds are to be expected yet.

Today local showers, confined mostly to southern and eastern sections of the state. Slight change in temperature.

A ROBBER BOLD,

Assails a Lady on a Public Street in Broad Daylight,

AND WITH A DRAWN KNIFE,

Compels Her to Give Up Her Purse, and When Pursued, Keeps His Pursuers at Bay with a Knife.

Mrs. J. P. Northrop, wife of the proprietor of the furnishing house on Peachtree street, left home yesterday morning about 8 o'clock to do some marketing.

She walked along Fairlie street toward the city, holding a small purse in her hand, and thinking nothing of harm, as the sun was shining brightly and numbers of people were on the street.

Just as she started to cross James street a negro stepped in front of her and seized her arms. The negro was a big one, and the cut of his eye was such as to satisfy the lady that she had a desperate villain to deal with.

The negro's eyes were fastened greedily upon the purse Mrs. Northrop carried, and he made a grab for it. She resisted as best she could, and the negro grew more desperate. Seeing several people near, he determined to make quick work of it.

He whipped out a sharp, ugly-looking knife and started to use it. Mrs. Northrop seeing that she might be badly cut by the negro let go her hold on the purse and ceased her efforts at resistance.

With the purse secure in his possession the negro turned and ran off down the street.

A number of people walking along the street, who had seen the struggle, rushed up just as the negro started to run.

He ran down James street at a clipping pace, and the crowd followed close at his heels. The highwayman's pursuers gained rapidly upon him and after following him for about a square started to close in upon him.

The robber, seeing that he was about to be overtaken, faced about and with his dangerous-looking knife drawn and muttering threats, he kept the crowd at bay.

The sight of the negro with his drawn weapon ready for use kept off his pursuers, and the negro again made off. This time the crowd followed more slowly and after running about a hundred yards the negro leaped over a fence and was lost to view.

The matter was at once reported to the police station and the detectives were put to work to hunt for the highwayman.

In the afternoon Detectives Crum and Walton arrested a negro known as "Crip" Worthy, who answers to the description of the assailant of Mrs. Northrop. The negro denies all knowledge of the matter, but is held as a suspect until further investigation.

Mrs. Northrop's purse contained about twenty dollars.

BARBECUE AT STONE MOUNTAIN.

There Will Be Good Speeches and Plenty to Eat.

The democrats of DeKalb and adjoining counties hold a barbecue at Stone Mountain today.

Ex-Senator Fleming duBignon, of Savannah; Colonel Jim Smith, of Oglethorpe; Colonel W. Y. Atkinson, of Coweta; Colonel "Bill" Simmons, of Gwinnett, and Colonel Joe James, of Douglas, are the star speakers who are down on the list. Ex-Senator duBignon is counted on for a great speech. He has never spoken in DeKalb and the people there are anxious to hear this match[less] orator. He and Colonel Smith are to speak this morning.

A ton of beef, mutton and pork will be barbecued and there will be provisions for 3,000 hungry democrats and third partyites. All are welcome. Cheap rates have been given from Atlanta and all points convenient to Stone Mountain. A large number will probably go out from Atlanta at 8 o'clock this morning on the Georgia road, and return at 1 o'clock. At least twenty-five hundred people are expected at the barbecue. There will be seats and dinner for all.

Colonel John S. Candler, solicitor general of the Stone Mountain circuit, will start the ball rolling with a short speech. He said last night that this will be a great day for DeKalb and he declared that the county will go democratic by 500 majority.

CAPITOL GOSSIP.

One Convict Released and Another Refused a Pardon.

Governor Northen granted a pardon yesterday to Charley Brogden, who was serving a two-years sentence for burglary. Brogden was convicted in Fulton county in June, 1891. He is sick, and the penitentiary physician stated that the prisoner would not live to serve out his term if confined in camp.

A pardon was refused to Will Bryan, who was sentenced from Fulton county last year for five years for assault with intent to murder.

The new militia district in Pickens county will be known as 1,492, that number having been designated by the governor yesterday.

Captain S. D. Bradwell, school commissioner, is at Americus attending a teachers' institute.

Colonel R. F. Wright, assistant keeper of the penitentiary, returned yesterday from an inspection trip.

Adjutant General Kell is taking a vacation at Sapelo.

General Cook, secretary of state, has issued a charter to the Georgia, Carolina and Northern's beltline company.

The statehouse officers are interested in today's primaries to the extent that Colonel Nesbitt and Colonel Henderson are contesting for control of the delegation.

DEATH OF MRS. E. L. BATES.

She Quietly Passes Away at Her Home Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. E. L. Bates, a highly esteemed and lovable Christian lady, died at her residence, No. 28 Wheat street, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Bates was the daughter of Dr. F. L. Constantine, and was a woman of rare and excellent traits of character. She was fortunate in the possession of a sweet and attractive disposition, and for the charm of her quiet and unassuming manners she was held in affectionate esteem by a large circle of intimate friends. The news of her sad death will be read with sorrow in many homes in Atlanta.

Mrs. Bates was a devout Christian lady, and an earnest and consistent member of the Methodist church. The funeral will be announced tomorrow.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

The Grand Lodge of Georgia Meets Today at Buford.

The grand lodge of Good Templars meets at Buford today. Routine business will be transacted. Tomorrow will be given up to public addresses.

Among the speakers announced are: Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, Rev. H. A. Hodges, grand chief; Grand Chancellor T. M. Read, of Athens; Rev. M. J. Cofer, D. C. Alion, Rev. M. A. Mathews, of Calhoun; and J. J. Keith.

The order has a large membership in Georgia. During the last three years the Templars have not increased much, if any, in the state, but the reports of Grand Secretary James G. Thrower will make a favorable showing for the present year. This meeting is not expected to be so large as previous ones, on account of the change being made at a late day in the place of meeting.

INTO THE RIVER.

The Suicide of a Well-Known Young Man in West Point.

West Point, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Mr. James Thompson, a young man and member of the firm of Thompson & Hammer, of this place, is thought to have suicided yesterday morning, July 24th, by jumping off the railroad bridge into the Chattahoochee river.

Mr. Thompson has been on a spree for several days and yesterday morning, about 8:30 o'clock, gave to his sister, Mrs. J. E. Burton, what money he had on his person, her husband being present, also his younger brother, and told them that they would never see him again. Instead of going to town by the footbridge, he went up to the railroad bridge. They saw him when he got to the bridge and watching they never saw him pass off of it. His brother went across the footbridge, intending to intercept him, and if possible keep him from getting any more whisky. He never put in his appearance in town and a party went to the railroad bridge to find out about him and found his hat on the bridge and no clue to him. It is evident that he laid his hat off and made the fatal plunge from midway the railroad bridge into the Chattahoochee river and was drowned. A great force is now out in bateaus with drags, trying to recover the body.

THE NEWS FROM AUGUSTA.

Death of Dr. S. P. Hunt—To Entertain Excursionists.

Augusta, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Dr. S. P. Hunt, a prominent citizen and surgeon, a veteran of the Mexican and late wars, died this morning. He was the father of Councilman Robert W. Hunt, traveling passenger agent of the Richmond and Danville.

An exchange meeting today agreed to cooperate in entertaining the Charleston excursionists and other visitors who are arranging to come to Augusta on various railroad excursions in September.

The First Presbyterian church congregation, in mass meeting today decided on considerable church improvements to be made while putting in the new organ this summer. During the two months vacation of Dr. Plunkett, about eight thousand dollars will be spent. The organ will be changed from the gallery to the rear of the minister's desk, and is the very latest make from Farrand & Votey, of Detroit. It is an improvement on the organ recently placed in Atlanta's First Presbyterian church with full pneumatic and Callender's consecutive action and echo organ.

SHOT IN THE NECK.

The Jailer of Spalding Takes Aim at a Fugitive.

Griffin, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Will Mullens shot and fatally wounded Ned Davis, a prisoner, in Spalding county jail Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock. The jailer went up to Ned Davis's cell, and found Ned quite busy sweeping up the floor, while several other prisoners were watching the proceedings. Just as Jailer Mullens opened the cell door for the trash to be swept out in the hallway, Ned saw his chance, and made at the jailer in sheep-butt-head fashion, striking the jailer in the stomach with his head, which sent him like a top across the hall, and knocking down two of his children.

The negro made for the open air by descending a flight of steps at one jump, but the jailer gained consciousness in time to fire one shot at the fleeing prisoner, which took effect in the back of the head just below the crown, ranging downward. Dr. Ellis Drewery cut the ball out this morning, which was found resting on the brain, and the negro is thought to be in a dying condition tonight.

Ned Davis was charged with burglary.

A Brilliant Meteor.

LaGrange, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—One of the brightest meteors ever seen passed over LaGrange at 7:30 last night. A great many people on their way to church noticed it. It looked almost as large as an arc light and after going a good distance through the heavens bursted just like a roman candle. It was very strange looking.

Dirt was broken on the new passenger depot of the Atlanta and West Point railroad this morning. When finished it will be one of the handsomest passenger depots in the state. It has been needed here for some time.

Bruised Up by a Runaway Horse.

Conyers, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—Mr. Henry Austin, about sixteen years old, son of Sheriff W. H. M. Austin, was considerably bruised up by his horse running away with him. He started out of town with his horse hitched to the wagon to go where he was working his crop. When about half way a plank on the wagon struck the horse and started him. Henry fell out and was run over by the wheels, and while considerably bruised and bleeding, was not seriously hurt. He is getting along very well at present.

The Crops in Wilkes.

Washington, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—The cotton crop throughout the county is in excellent condition. The weed is fine, and is taking on fruit rapidly. Indications point to an average crop. There will be more corn raised in the county than any previous year in its history. The crop is above the average in yield, and the acreage is 100 per cent greater than that of last year.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The stock market opened a new week today but there was still no change in the character of the trading and while the bulls seemed to have the upper hand for the time being, the improvement in quotations outside of Sugar and a few specialties was of the smallest kind, and dullness continued to be the prevailing feature. There was no animation except in St. Paul, Erie, Atchison and Sugar, but while all were strong only the last fluctuated over the range of more than 1 per cent, but among the specialties, Minneapolis and St. Paul, both common and preferred, with Evansville and Terre Haute and Great Northern preferred, scored handsome gains on light transactions. The rest of the market was extremely dull with scarcely any perceptible change in quotations and utterly barren of feature. Shorts were the principal buyers and after a steady opening then purchases developed a firm temper, which the strength in the few stocks mentioned served to maintain until well into the last hour, when a drive was made at Rock Island with considerable effect, while realization in the general list melted away the gains of the previous portions of the day. But the influence in this decline was fairly set off by new buying in Erie preferred, which moved up over 1 per cent. The market, however, presented no features of special interest and finally closed barely steady at concessions, but with most of the stocks at small fractions better than the close of last week. Sugar, however, retained most of its early advance and closed 1 3-8 per cent higher. Sales listed, 104,000; unlisted, 28,000.

Exchange quiet and steady at 488@489½; commercial bills 486½@488.

Money easy at 1½@2, closing offered at 1½.

Sub-treasury balances: Coin, $88,247,000; currency $18,110,000.

Governments dull but steady; 4s 116¾.

State bonds neglected.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The London market sold about 6,000 shares at the opening, but the Keene and White interest took all this stock and directed their energies in putting up Erie and Atchison. The former was bulled on the increase in gross this year, but the net does not show up nearly so well. The room traders were uniformly bullish and must all be pretty well long of stocks. The only two stocks that did not participate in the general good feeling were the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and Rhode Island. In both there was plenty offered to fill the demand, as the damage by the excessive hot weather west has brought about some realizing. In the last hour Mr. Cammack showed his hand again and sold a few stocks and the market sold off quickly all around. The bulls argue that there are no stocks for sale but the same can be said by the bear side, as there are also few stocks wanted. Sterling exchange is firm and unless the supply of bills increases we will again ship some gold on Saturday's steamer. The manipulation is all on the bull side and we do not see any money in bulling prices with these present conditions. We therefore advise sales on all rallies.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, July 25—Liverpool was slightly lower this morning, caused by the threatened strike on the part of operators at the proposed reduction of 10 per cent in wages. Judging, however, from the demand from spinners we think it likely the compromise foreshadowed in our letter of Saturday of 5 per cent will be accepted. New cotton is appearing in many sections in Texas, the recent weather having forced the plant forward. Texas has now been nearly three weeks without rain, and the temperature in many places is reported at over 100 degrees. Telegrams have been received here stating serious damage will be done unless rain falls within the next ten days. Showers continue throughout the east gulf states. The market is awaiting the result of the deliberations in Washington upon the Hatch bill, and until this matter is decided but little change can be expected. The temper continues in favor of cotton, as is shown by the steadiness of the market in the face of the large supply. Tenders upon August are expected to be very heavy, though quite an amount of cotton will pass into fresh hands because of the low price at which this market is now ruling. During the afternoon reports of the appearance of worms in Mississippi and rumors from Washington that the Hatch bill might be recommitted steadied the market. The New Orleans market recovered the entire decline and advanced 1@2 points. This is believed to be caused by crop reports from Texas and Mississippi which we have already noted. There is a distinct feeling in favor of the market, and we look for a further advance on the adjournment of congress.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

NEW YORK, July 25—The market opened at a fractional decline in sympathy with lower Liverpool prices and reports of more favorable weather in the cotton belt. Trading was extremely dull all day, and prices did not fluctuate over 2 points. The market, however, has a very firm tone, and as soon as the fears of the Hatch bill will have disappeared we think prices will improve. The rains in the south have stopped and complaints of damage by the same are general, but the actual damage is largely prospective.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 25—The wrath to come was measurably indicated by the heat in the trading pits today, but the operators struggled with it in negligee outing shirts and pantaloons with praiseworthy energy and disregard of the buoyancy of the mercury. It was a bull day, led by corn, which was well supported by provisions and received countenance, though of a subdued kind, from wheat. Changes since Saturday are an advance in corn of 1¼c, in pork of from 17½@32½c and in wheat of ⅜c. Oats made an advance of ⅜@½c more because corn ruled higher than because of any direct bull influence.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

CHICAGO, July 25.—The opening in wheat today was weak at about 1-4c lower caused no doubt by the easy cables, general good crop reports and very large receipts. The other markets all opened firm, and shortly after the opening wheat seemed to easily catch the bullish influence of the corn and provisions pit in sympathy. Trading for the first half hour was quite spirited, but soon afterwards quieted down and was only lively afterwards by spells. The bulk of interest today was centered in corn. The opening was firm with plenty of buyers, the opening prices being somewhat higher. Any number of reports were on hand stating that the dry, hot weather was hurting the corn crop; saying that in some places it was being baked and burned up. Some of these reports were no doubt exaggerated and we saw some contradictions, but as a whole the reports seemed to be unfavorable, and corn speculators knowing the crop to be late and generally believing it poor refused to remain on the short side when news appears to come against them. The shorts we think were the best buyers today, although there was also considerable buying for investment. The sentiment seems to be all on one side, market closing firm.

There was a fair volume of business done in oats and at times the market was quite spirited. This was due entirely to the increased activity in corn.

Provisions have ruled considerably higher today; were strong and higher at the opening on the continued higher run of hogs, receipts being about 7,000 under the estimate. This naturally made a good demand at the opening with rather light offerings. Market ruled moderately active during the day, closing firm.

A HOT CAMPAIGN.

The Third Partyites Preparing for the Fight.

THE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE AT WORK.

It Will Meet on Thursday and Schedule the Speakers—Weaver, Field, Watson and Others.

In the three months next to come there will be some political campaigning in Georgia that will astonish the natives.

Before the leaves are browned by the autumn sun every stump in the state will bear the footprint of some third party or democratic orator. Not since the war has there been such a political year in Georgia as this is going to be. Men, who in years past have not taken enough interest in political contests to vote, have become campaigners, and even stump speakers. And every orator who feels inclined to talk will be given an opportunity to air himself on the stump.

Next Thursday the campaign committee of the third party will meet at the party headquarters and it will hold a busy session. It has in hand the work of mapping out the campaign, and its task is not a light one.

Recognizing this and that, the time for the beginning of the campaign has arrived. Mr. Mark Irwin, chairman of the committee and son-in-law of Gubernatorial Candidate Peek, has called his committee together to map out the fight. The meeting will be one of the most important the committee has ever yet held.

The committee has

at its service, any one of whom is willing to go wherever he is assigned. There are plenty of requests for speakers to attend barbecues and all kinds of gatherings in various parts of the state to be held within the next three months. The third party headquarters is besieged with letters from brethren in sections of the state where the third party germ has failed to sprout asking that orators be sent to water the sickly plant.

Every prominent third party man will take a hand in the fight. Mr. Ellington, Mr. Post, Mr. Irwin, Mr. Daniel, all the nominees for state offices, and other leaders will stump the state.

Mel Branch will mount the rosin-begummed stump of south Georgia and the stalwart oak stump of the middle part of the state, and give reasons for the faith that is in him.

Then Tom Watson will be here, and will not confine himself to his own bailiwick. He's going to speak all over the state at big rallies. He will come home in haste just as soon as congress adjourns.

The third party people idolize the tenth district congressman, and they want to see him on the stump. Recently they have only heard from him through his advertising mediums—his two papers.

Presidential Candidate Weaver

and Vice President Candidate Field are both coming to Georgia to speak on the situation. They will be here one week, and in that time they will speak in every section of the state. It is not definitely known just when they will be here; the campaign committee will settle that.

The committeemen say thare will be no other imported orators here. Georgia-raised orators to the manner born will have a monopoly of the speaking.

It will take the committee two or three days to finish the work of supplying speakers.

Peek and Turner.

Next Saturday Colonel Peek will open the campaign at Quitman in the liveliest sort of way.

He will open it in a joint debate with Hon. Henry G. Turner, the congressman from that district. Everybody in that section will be present to hear the two distinguished speakers. Mr. Post and several other third party orators will also be present to engage in the joint debate. It will not be a milk-and-water discussion. The speakers on both sides will give the best they have in the shop, and it will be something similar to the times when Clark and Troup fought for the mastery in Georgia.

Colonel Peek says the third party men are pruned for a royal battle during the summer. And he declares that he will be in the thickest of it.

"There's going to be," said he, "more barbecues in Georgia this summer than ever before. There will be one at every crossroad, and the issues will be discussed calmly by both sides. The farmers are through work now, and are ready for the fun.

"I am sorry to see some show of bitterness by both sides in the discussion of the two parties. We all ought to keep cool, and reason together like men. We are all friends and shouldn't fall out. I shall try to conduct a campaign free from mud slinging and abuse."

Colonel Peek has about recovered from his recent fall, and seems anxious to leap into the middle of the fray. In speaking of the contest he smiles blandly and professes the sublimest confidence in the result.

In the Eighth Today.

Hon. W. Y. Carter, of Hart, who was a delegate to the recent third party convention, and who has been spoken of for congress from his district, was in the city yesterday.

Today the eighth district convention meets at Athens to nominate a candidate for congress.

There are any number of possibilities spoken of. Among them are S. E. McCandless, Dr. J. R. Robins, George T. Murrell and W. Y. Carter.

Hon. E. T. Brown, mayor of Athens, has been spoken of, but as he is not a third party man, it is safe to predict that he will not be nominated. His well-known advocacy of the cause of the farmers caused the talk of his nomination.

Mr. Carter thinks Dr. Robins will be nominated on the first ballot. Dr. Robins is district lecturer of the state alliance and a strong third party man. He is an uncle of Dr. J. B. Robins, pastor of the First Methorist church of this city.

He and Hon. Thomas G. Lawson will make politics warm in the eighth.

TRIPPED UNDER A TRAIN.

A Singular Accident Causes a Heavy Suit Against the Georgia Railroad.

A singular accident that occurred last May was the cause of an interesting suit that was filed in the city court yesterday.

It was filed by Mr. G. S. Crow, in behalf of his young son, Denson Crow, who is not of age, and therefore prevented from bringing the suit in his own behalf.

The suit is against the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company and the amount of damage alleged to have been sustained by the accident is $10,000.

The declaration sets out that on the 13th of May, 1892, Denson was walking between the tracks near the point where Piedmont avenue crosses under the Georgia railroad. It was a part used by travelers and the frequency with which it was so used made it almost amount to a public highway. He was quietly proceeding along his way when the train came bounding along the track and he stepped to one side in order to allow the engine to pass.

But here is the funny part of the story and the cause as the plaintiff alleges of the whole difficulty. A man by the name of Francis, alleged by the plaintiff to be a trespasser, was stealing a ride on the train. He was standing on the platform of the car just in front of the tender, and when the train dashed by, he threw out his foot in a wild, reckless sort of a way, causing the plaintiff to fall under the wheel of the passing engine.

His right foot and leg were horribly crushed, and the latter was amputated soon after the accident occurred. The limb was cut off just below the knee cap.

For several weeks the boy was confined to his bed, and the suffering that was caused by the accident amounted to excruciating agony. He was earning before the injury occurred an annual salary of $300 and was strong and able-bodied and athletic. He was now injured to such an extent that his capacity for work was reduced at least one-half, and he would have to go upon crutches as long as he lived.

The suit was filed by Colonel W. M. Bray.

IT WAS WARM, INDEED.

Yesterday Could Be Classed as a Scorcher, Though Not as Hot as Sunday.

Sunday was the warmest day that Atlanta has seen this year, but yesterday was not very far behind it.

Everybody was of the same mind—that was that yesterday, as far as the feelings were concerned, was a great deal warmer than Sunday.

The reason is perhaps explained by the fact that Sunday was a day of rest and everybody improved the opportunity of the day to walk out in the woods or sit with their coats off in the cool shade of the front yard.

But yesterday was different. It was a day of hard work and everybody was busy. The heat of the sun was more oppressively felt and with the smallest exertion the great hot beads of perspiration stood out on the forehead and rolled in vast quantities down the faces.

The street cars were in demand. No breeze could be found by remaining in town, and a great many, induced by a desire to cool off, boarded the nine mile circle car, the car to the river or the cars to Fort McPherson or Grant park and went sailing away through the woods.

It is not often that Atlanta is without a good breeze. Situated among the hills and on them she is fortunate in having a breeze that is almost sea-like in its cool and refreshing effect. But yesterday she was certainly boycotted and if any breeze was stirring it was like Brer Rabbit—it laid low in the hollows.

The charm of Atlanta's climate is the delightful temperature of the nights. However warm the days get to be in July, the evenings are always cool and refreshing, and after the work of the day is over it is pleasant to sit out on the porch and catch the breeze as it comes in from the west. But last night, though not an exception, was a little warmer than usual, and it was necessary to bring in the palm leaf in order to help out the breeze.

The temperature Sunday was 93 1-2 degrees and the thermometer yesterday stood 89 1-2. The highest that Atlanta has ever known in July was 100 degrees and that was in 1887. It was certainly a scorcher. But if the weather keeps up like it started out yesterday there is no telling where the mercury will stop.

SENDING OUT PASSES.

Delegates to the Agricultural Society's Annual Meeting Will Travel Free.

President Waddell, of the State Agricultural Society, sent out yesterday a large batch of railroad passes to delegates to the society's annual meeting which will be held in Griffin, August 10th and 11th. All the roads in the state but one have sent in passes to the president and that one has always given them in the past and will no doubt send them along in a day or two.

Colonel Waddell thinks that there will be a good attendance. He has organized several new clubs this year and reports the society as in better condition than last year.

Nothing of unusual importance is looked for at this meeting, although it will be an interesting one.

Colonel Waddell has received so many letters from prominent members of the society that his re-election is considered assured. Something has been said about a president from south or southwest Georgia. Colonel Waddell makes the point that in more than forty years there has been only one president and he for two years from that section north of a line drawn through the middle of the state.

Fifteen or twenty of the delegates to the society's meeting are also delegates to the state democratic convention which meets in Atlanta, August 10th.

These delegates will probably come to the political convention the first day and go to Griffin on the next.

THEY WORKED TOGETHER,

But Yesterday They Fell Out, and One of Them Was Badly Cut.

J. L. Bogart and J. T. Brown are fellow workmen in the employ of J. C. Peck & Son. The place where they work is out of the city limits, but both men live in the city.

Last evening when the day's work was ended the two men had a desperate fight in which Bogart was cut up in a frightful manner.

The story of the cutting as Bogart tells it is very damaging to Brown. He says while he was exchanging his working clothes for a neater suit Brown stepped up behind him and began cutting him with a knife. He says he was bending over at the time and Brown's knife blows fell upon his thigh, the blade sinking deep into the flesh.

The men were separated and Bogart was found to be badly suffering from his cuts. He was carried to his home and medical attention given him.

The matter was outside of police jurisdiction. A warrant will likely be sworn out today.

GROWING WEALTHIER.

Four Counties Show an Increase of Half a Million Dollars.

The summarized tax returns received at the comptroller general's office last week showed a falling off from last year. Four digests were received yesterday and they showed good increases.

The counties with totals and increases are:

Gwinnett	$2,959,723	$123,763
Hall	4,132,186	117,497
Liberty	1,654,805	143,384
Rockdale	1,344,656	71,255

The returns for twenty counties thus far received show an average of about $40,000 per county.

Rockdale's digest which was sent in yesterday was handsome work. It was prepared by R. L. Hudson, hte tax receiver, whose work is always clear and beautiful.

SUNDAY SODA WATER

Which Was Dispensed by S. W. Woodward,

AND WHICH MADE THE HEAD SWIM.

The Detectives Got Hold of a Bottle and a Case Was Made—Woodward Fails to Show Up.

S. W. Woodward has gone where the woodbine twineth, or to some other place where the city police cannot find him.

Thereby hangs a story of the Sunday sale of "booze," the capture of the seller, his release on bond, and his going away some other where.

S. W. Woodward is a Decatur street merchant. His establishment is not an extensive one, occupying only a small space less than ten feet square. He keeps for sale fresh watermelons, red apples, July peaches, ground peas and soda water.

Every day in the week Woodward's booth flourished, it being largely patronized by the negroes that infest the street so largely. Every Sunday Woodward sits at his place with a meek and Christian-like expression on his face, selling such harmless stuff as soda water. There is no legal harm in selling the thirsty public bottled soda water just off the ice on Sunday, and certainly there is no moral wrong.

Conscious of his moral and legal rectitude, Woodward sat at his place on Sundays and many bottles of red whisky and yellow soda water did he sell. The police walked by this harmless place and smiled at the very proper and law-abiding looking proprietor, and thought nothing wrong.

Last Sunday, so the detectives say, some parties bought some of Woodward's soda water, and shortly after partaking of it they became very boisterous. Whether or not this effect is due to the mysterious winking of the other eye in which they indulged is an open question. Any way, the officers say, the soda water acted surprisingly on those who drank it.

The detectives got hold of a bottle of this soda water. It had a suspicious smell and a queer taste.

The result was that Mr. Woodward was arrested for keeping a Sunday blind tiger. He gave bond in the sum of $200, Mr. Tom Minor being his bondsman.

Now there is a deserted fruit stand, a bondsman in the soup, a forfeited bond, and a missing Woodward some where.

The case was set for a hearing yesterday morning, but when the time for trial came Woodward was not in court. He was not at his business place either, and Mr. Minor, his bondsman, could not find him.

It appeared that the soda water dispenser had disappeared, and the bond will be marked forfeited today.

Mr. Minor and the detectives would like to find Mr. Woodward, of soda water fame, in the meantime.

WILL ARRIVE TODAY.

The Body of Mr. J. W. Dabney Will Reach the City This Morning.

The body of Mr. J. W. Dabney will arrive in the city this morning.

It was fully expected that the body would reach the city yesterday afternoon, and several friends went down to the depot for the purpose of paying their last respects to the dead. But for the reason that the casket was not shipped from Texas as early as it was first expected, it failed to arrive at the time announced in the funeral notice. The body will be here today, however, and the funeral will occur from the depot. The interment will be made in Oakland cemetery.

"I would like to sound the praises of Hood's Sarsaparilla over the entire universe," writes Mrs. Longenecker, of Union Deposit, Penn.

To the Voters of Fulton County.

R. T. Nesbitt has served only one term as commissioner.

He has made a splendid officer.

He is strong all over the state, and will be nominated beyond any question.

He was a splendid soldier, and as a boy fought for Atlanta in the trenches around the city.

While he lives in Cobb county, he and his people are thoroughly identified with Fulton, and he gave two of his best positions to citizens of Fulton.

Judge Henderson held the office twelve years and Colonel Nesbitt was elected only two years ago. Without a doubt as to Colonel Nesbitt's proficiency he deserves reelection. * * *

BEHIND TIME.

It's your own fault if you are behind time. There was a time when one watch was about all a whole family could afford, and when the purchase of a clock was almost as serious a matter as the purchase of a house is now. There isn't anything very formidable about the purchase of a clock or a watch in these days. The astonishing thing about timekeepers now is their cheapness, variety and excellence. Don't be behind time. There is not the least excuse for anything of the kind, when we are offering our entire stock of watches at a big reduction for the next thirty days.

Upon Reflection

you will come to the conclusion that our stock of clothing can't be beat. If we claimed that in some respects it can't be matched, you would smile at us. It may have its equal in quantity, but when it comes to price and fit, there is simply no room for argument. Somewhere on this continent you may be able to find a stock that is just as good, but nowhere will you be able to find one that will beat it. See if it can.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

The Richmond Terminal Situation Continues Suspiciously Quiet.

NOTHING NEW IN PLANS SUGGESTED.

Rival Systems—The Pennsylvania and the Reading Have Jealous Eyes on the Danville.

The affairs of the Richmond Terminal and its properties are drifting along without developments. And nothing new is looked for until the Richmond and Danville's receivership case comes up next month. Mr. Clyde has not shown any disposition to yield and allow Mr. Samuel Spencer to be substituted for Messrs. Foster and Huidekoper, the temporary receivers.

Outsiders can never tell what the Terminal people will do next. No one will be surprised to see an amicable arrangement between the two factions in the Terminal and the Danville. This temporary receivership does to carry the properties through the dull summer season with. In another month traffic will improve and the railroads will offer a more inviting opportunity to reorganizers than they did in June. J. Pierpont Morgan is a long-headed financier and may have the Terminal situation pretty well in his own control.

It is interesting to note that the idea suggested months ago by The Constitution that the Baltimore and Ohio and the Reading are after the Danville, is being accepted everywhere.

Hambleton & Co., the Baltimore banking house, in its last circular letter, takes this view, saying:

The vital question would appear to be—Is the Terminal company to be sustained and rehabilitated upon a solvent basis? or, on the contrary, is that company to be thrown over and the Richmond and Danville, the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia and the Central of Georgia to be reorganized collectively or individually? The East Tennessee and the Central of Georgia are drawing away from the Danville system and if they are to be retained in the fold it will be well for the Terminal people to bestir themselves.

There appears to be two roads out of the difficulty—either via the Pennsylvania or Baltimore and Ohio companies. This is the plain English of it, the Richmond and Danville system of roads promises to fall under the protection of one or the other of these corporations. If Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co. undertake the reorganization of the Danville system their influence would, in our opinion, be exerted to bring about a grand combination between Reading, Jersey Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Richmond and Danville. A quartet which could command the trade of the south and would exert an irresistible power in the section traversed. On the other hand the Danville system would be a most advantageous adjunct to the Pennsylvania and as the latter company is in possession, so to speak, by having a direct connection and a traffic contract, perhaps the way out of the woods lies via the Pennsylvania route.

With the bond and stockholders of the Terminal company it is a case of sauve qui peut. If an arrangement can be made whereby the Terminal company can be saved from disintegration it will be best for the bond and share holders of this company, but if the Richmond and Danville, the Central of Georgia and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia are reorganized independent of the Terminal, the junior lien securities, upon which the whole Terminal structure is chiefly based, will realize very little as collaterals to secure the bonds and stock of the Terminal company.

Whichever of these great northern systems takes hold of the Richmond and Danville, the other will almost certainly work with the Seaboard Air-Line, thus giving the south two powerful trunk lines.

HIS CONSCIENCE PRICKED HIM.

He was pastor of a church in a small town in the interior of the state, and he came to [illegible] visit for a few weeks. On an exceedingly warm day he had visited a number of "the sights" which all people from out of town go to see when they are in the metropolis. The museum of arts, Central park and various up-town resorts had been seen, and the clergyman came down town expecting to visit some of the interesting places of business in the afternoon. He stepped into a Broadway restaurant to get some luncheon. Sitting down on a high stool with dozens of other customers at a long counter he was about to ask the man behind the counter for a glass of water when he observed a glass of beer in front of the man next to him. Thoughts of the few glasses of malt liquor which he had drank while a student in college flashed across his mind.

How delicious the amber fluid looked! Big drops of moisture were on the outside of the glass, showing that the beer was almost ice cold. Just then his neighbor took up the glass and drank half its contents. He seemed to relish it greatly. The air seemed warmer than ever to the minister. His mouth watered.

But people from the rural districts are inclined to be more prejudiced against such a thing as a minister drinking a glass of beer than their brethren in the city are, and the natural inclination was strong in his mind to resist the temptation. He was extremely thirsty, however, and the feeling was aggravated by seeing the owner of the beer take another long draught. The pastor looked to his right and left, then leaned over the lunch counter and ordered some clams on the half shell, and said in a voice so low that the waiter could scarcely hear him:

"And bring me a glass of beer."

The waiter was not sure that he had heard aright, so he asked: "A glass of beer?"

The minister bowed his head affirmatively and glanced nervously at his neighbors on both sides to see if the somewhat loud tones of the waiter had caught their attention. They were busily at work, one at a bowl of soup, and the other with a piece of huckleberry pie. Apparently they were not aware of the minister's existence. He felt somewhat relieved, but just as he was congratulating himself the waiter bawled out so loudly that it made the pastor nearly fall from his seat:

"A glass of lager!"

The call was taken up further down the long room: "A glass of lager!"

Finally the message reached its destination and the man at the bar near the front door responded:

"A glass of beer; right!"

Meanwhile the man in black was turning all sorts of colors and fidgeting about on his seat as if he expected to see the hangman appear the next minute. He glanced nervously about at the people in the place, and it seemed to him that every one in the room was looking at him. While still uneasily glancing about another waiter came up with the glass of beer and looking inquiringly at the six or eight men in that neighborhood, called out: "A glass of beer?" evidently expecting that the man who had ordered it would claim his own.

The waiter behind the counter was away just then getting some pork and beans for another customer, so he could not direct the man with the beer where to put it. The minister looked confused. His eyes were fixed on the place where the waiter had disappeared. For the first time his neighbors seemed to recognize his existence. They seemed to remember that he had ordered the beer and looked up inquiringly when he did not claim it. The minister imagined he detected a derisive smile on the faces of both of them as they gazed at him in mild astonishment. The man with the beer passed down the line and just then the other waiter appeared.

"Say, where do you want this beer?" asked the one holding the glass.

The man behind the counter pointed to the place, and the beer was put down in front of the minister. At the same time the man with the glass gave the pastor a look which seemed to say:

"Well, why didn't you say so?"

The minister's neighbors looked at him curiously, also. He ate his clams and drank his beer, but it did not taste half so good as he thought it was going to. He "bolted" his luncheon and hurried out. As he paid his bill the young woman at the cashier's desk smiled at him in a sarcastic manner, as he thought, and a young man who came up to the desk just then cast a glance at the minister, then looked knowingly at the young woman and they both smiled. The man in black was too much confused and crestfallen to resent anything. He hurried out and disappeared in the crowd in Broadway.—New York Tribune.

"I Am Sam."

"As you gentlemen who fought on the other side are no doubt aware," said the handsome ex-confederate colonel, with a smile, "we rebels held the battlefield of Chickamauga.

"I was captain at this time, and for the first and only time in my military career I found myself detailed to bury the dead. If none of you have ever had this work to do you can form no idea of its appalling horrors.

"It is said that 'familiarity breeds contempt,' but an eternity of familiarity could never make me indifferent to the sickening, heartrendering sights of a battlefield after the struggle is over and one looks at the many postured dead in cold blood.

"Of course there were no coffins, not even for our own boys, who covered the ground by hundreds. We dug separate trenches for the men in blue and gray, laying them side by side in long, stark rows, and then covering them up.

"But that day we buried one young yankee by himself, and this is how it was:

"We were moving over the ground along the slope so heroically held by Thomas's men, when one of the detail called me to him.

"He was bending over a handsome youth in blue, whose yellow head rested on his arm as if he were asleep.

"'What is it?' I asked of the man.

"'Just look at that, captain,' he said.

"I knelt down and found that the poor fellow's left arm had been torn off by a shell. He evidently felt that the end had come, and realized, perhaps, that there was nothing on his person by which he could be identified. With a splinter of wood, evidently dipped in his own heart's blood, he managed to scrawl on the stock of his gun the words, 'I am Sam—.' The last word was no doubt meant for 'Samuel,' and intended to be followed by his full address, but death came before he could finish it.

"The whole thing was so touching, so suggestive, that myself and men were affected as if we had taken sudden colds, and let me say we were familiar with death.

"'I reckon, captain,' said one of the men, and he evidently voiced the sentiment of most of his comrades, 'that we'd better give the poor fellow a restin' place by hisself.'

"I coughed my consent and under the oak at the foot of which he lay we made him a separate grave. The soldiers covered it tenderly up and I cut in the bark all we knew of the poor fellow, with the date of his death:

"'I am Sam—, a federal soldier killed at Chickamauga, September 20, '63.'"

A Case of Mistaken Confidence.

From The Detroit Free Press.

The attorney prosecuting in a breach of promise case was youthful and fresh and delighted in showing himself off, but he didn't know what a guy he was until it fell on him with a dull and sickening thud. The defendant had taken the stand.

"You say," said the attorney, after several impertinent questions, "that you never made love to her?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Never called her pet names, either, I suppose?"

"No, sir."

"Now, as a matter of fact, didn't you call her Lizzie after you had been to see her only three or four times and always after that, when you know you should have called her Miss Smith, if you had not been seeking to win her young and trusting heart?"

"No, sir, I did not."

The plaintiff pulled the attorney's sleeve, but he paid no attention to her.

"Ah, indeed," very sarcastically. "I presume you never called her Lizzie in your life?"

"I never did, sir."

The attorney sat forward with a sharp crack of the chair legs on the floor.

"I'd like to know why you never did, sir?" he asked with the air of a man who knew he had the facts.

"Because," and the witness was as cool as a palm-leaf fan could make him in June, because that wasn't her name."

Then it was the attorney heeded the plaintiff's wild clutchings and wanted to hit himself in the neck with a law book, but it was everlastingly too late.

Misrepresented Their Constituents.

From The Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

Congress has not treated Chicago fairly. That city with unparalleled enterprise raised $10,000,000 as its contribution to the Columbian exposition. It has kept every promise it made. The interest the citizns of Chicago have manifested has come to be the common sentiment of all American citizens who love the "land of the free and the home of the brave." That congress should refuse an appropriation far less than that which one patriotic city has made will be condemned by them, irrespective of section. The southern congressmen who voted against the appropriation have not accurately represented the disposition of this section we are very sure. While it is true that the southern states, for various reasons, made appropriations for state exhibits, it does not follow that there was any lack of pride in the promised splendors of the exhibition among the southern people. They appreciated thoroughly the liberality of Chicago, and they are today willing that congress shall make the appropriation for $5,000,000. There were other federal enterprises which were generously recognized in the appropriation bill which could have waited for money without having the national honor brought into question.
